STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE The cornerstone of the Oakland Post Office indicates that the building was erected in 1940 while James A. Farley was Postmaster General, John M. Carmody was Federal Works Commissioner, and W. Englebort Reynolds was Commissioner of Public Buildings. Louis A. Simon was Supervising Architect and Neal A. Melick was Supervising Engineer. Architecturally, the post office is typical of the classically inspired buildings erected by the Federal government in the Depression Era.
