Historical documentation does not indicate that this resource is associated with Criterion A, broad patterns of history or a significant event or Criterion B, an important person who contributed to local or state history. The property does not embody distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction nor does it represent the work of a master or possess high artistic value; therefore, Criterion C, architecture, does not apply. Lastly, the property is unlikely to yield information which contributes to our understanding of human history.

NOT ELIGIBLE FOR THE NRHP.

The dwelling located at 450 W. Liberty St., Oakland, was constructed in 1930 according to local land records. Rising one story, the simple, frame building rests on a concrete foundation, with the main block measuring three bays by two. The front elevation includes a one story porch covered by the extended gable roof. An interior concrete chimney projects from the roof line. Synthetic siding covers the entire building. Limited background information does not reveal any significant historical association for this property. In addition, the building is located far outside the Oakland NRHD to be considered as a contributing resource. This common building type does not possess distinctive features to be eligible for the NR.

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The White House is located on the west side of West Liberty Street, just west of the Oakland golf course. The dwelling is parallel to the road and is approximately twenty feet from the edge of pavement. The property is bordered by the railroad tracks on the west, a frame garage on the north, the road and three large pine trees the east, and open green space on the south elevation. A gravel driveway which begins at the pine trees runs parallel past the house and turns west to the dwelling's southside.

The rectangle-shaped, single-story, frame, side gable-roofed house has wooden rafters, moderate width gable eaves, a poured concrete foundation, and vinyl exterior siding. Attached to the four bay- wide facade is a single- story three- bay porch with a slatted wood deck, square wood posts, diamond-shaped wood balustrade and an asphalt covered shed roof. Located at the rear of the house are two small frame lean-tos, each one has is one story, is sheathed with vinyl siding and rest upon wooden foundation piers. Near the center of the roof ridge protrudes a brick chimney stack with a clay flue.

Throughout the house there is a variety of fenestration which includes single light hopper units, 3/1 light, double hung sashes, and modern 1/1 light sliding, horizontal sash units. The entrance door is a single leaf wooden unit with a medallion design centered amid three panels. At the rear elevation there are two single leaf doors: one is a modern frame unit with an upper diamond panel and a lower cross panel while the other door is a four panel wood unit.

Located immediately to the north are two, single story, frame outbuildings. The larger of the pair is a double bay, facade gable roofed garage with a concrete block foundation, asphalt shingle siding and wide roof eaves. A single leaf, five- panel wood provides pedestrian egress. The other building is a shed-roofed shed clad in asbestos shingle siding and rests upon painted white and yellow wood block piers. South of the house is a modern single story, circular, gable roofed wishing well. Its base is masonry construction; inside it are square wood posts which support the frame gable roof.
