Criteria: A B C D Considerations: A B C D E F G None

Justification for decision: (Use continuation sheet if necessary and attach map)

The Judy A. Filsinger House is recommended not eligible for the National Register. Research has not indicated any relationships to significant broad patterns of history contributing to the Oakland areas growth. Research has also not identified any significant associations with historic persons or events. The house neither reflects the distinctive characteristics of a particular architectural style nor embodies the representative work of a master craftsman or method of construction. The building also does not appear to potentially provide important information for the study of history.

Document on the property/district is presented in: Historic Structures Inventory and Determination of Eligibility Report

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Judy A. Filsinger House (G-VI-A-041) is located at 539 South Third Street in Oakland. The early-twentieth-century two-story gable-front frame house has a full width front porch. Facing southeast, the dwelling sits on a rectangular lot in a subdivision of early to mid-twentieth century homes along Third Street. Originally a single-family dwelling, it has been converted into a duplex.

Two bays wide by two bays deep, the dwelling is clad in vinyl siding and rests on a stone foundation that encloses a full cellar. Its front-facing gable roof is sheathed in asphalt shingles and finished with a vinyl-covered box cornice with returns. The glass-enclosed full-width front porch has a asphalt-shingled hip roof and wooden deck. An interior wall splits the porch in two. The original front entrance preserved in the south side of the porch contains a paneled wooden sash door with a plain wood surround. A small glass-enclosed shed-roofed porch with a wooden deck protects the back entrance on the northwest (rear) elevation. The vinyl replacement windows on the dwelling are primarily one-over-one double-hung sash. Plain vinyl molding surrounds the door and window openings.

Shrubs and rows of evergreen trees define the limits of the dwelling's lot. A plywood-sided frame shed is located behind and north of the dwelling. It has a front-facing gable roof sheathed with rolled asphalt. Its form, size and placement indicate that it may be a former garage. A gravel driveway connects the shed to the street. Behind the shed, the lot slopes downwards to the northwest.

National Register Maryland Register not evaluated

Prepare a one-paragraph summary statement of significance addressing applicable criteria, followed by a narrative discussion of the history of the resource and its context. (For compliance reports, complete evaluation on a DOE Form - see manual).

Built in 1914 according to Garrett County tax records, the Judy A. Filsinger House relates to the Oakland area's development during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Beginning in the early 1870s the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad (B&O) promoted the Oakland area as a summer resort and erected large hotels at Oakland and Deer Park. The town's population grew quickly thereafter and become the county seat when Garret was formed from part of Allegany County in 1872. Competition from other resorts and the rise of the automobile as the principal mode of transportation led the B&O to close its Oakland hotel by 1910. Oakland continued to slowly expand due to its role as the county seat and local market center throughout the early twentieth century. Actually located outside of the town limits when built, Oakland annexed the South Third Street area into its corporate limits in 1989.
