DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE
The Gillespie House is a two storey house of logs, covered with wood shingles, consisting of three sections. The two end sections are of two bays each and the smaller center section is of one bay; only one window opening occurs in each section of the second storey, however. The principal front faces approximately east. The north and center sections, probably the older portions, are 27 feet long; the entire structure measures 46'-6" long by 14'-4" deep. A modern external chimney rises from the north end, and a small single-flue chimney rises at the south end. Windows, generally, are 6/6, but the east window in the northerly section is a single six light sash. West windows, installed by the present owner, were taken from the second storey of the demolished ballroom wing of Verdant Valley Farm. A one storey shed roofed porch extends across the entire east front. Most surfaces have been refinished in a very simple, generally undatable manner. The log wall between the north and center sections has been removed. The plain stair rises to the second floor from the center section. The floors of the south section are a few inches lower than those in the two sections to the north. The second floor plan is similar to the first. The slim log roof rafters are mitered at the ridge, and they appear uniform above all sections, suggesting that the present roof was rebuilt after all three sections were standing, or that the older sections, perhaps (typically) 1½ storeys in height, were raised to their present two storey heights when the last section was built two storeys in height. A stone-walled cellar is beneath the southerly section only. Some crawl space has been dug under the center section, and the northerly section is on grade. All joists are of hewn log, and the log walls, covered with vertical boarding, are visible in the south end wall in the cellar entry. Northeast of the house stands a stable, approximately 16 by 20 feet, built into the hillside. Its basement or ground storey is of stone, opening on grade at the south side. Massive log joists support the first floor. Exterior walls are covered in asbestos shingles, and the shingles in the gables are on a surface about an inch beyond the surface of the first storey walls, indicating the presence of typical vertical boarding beneath them. The interior is divided into small rooms finished with modern materials. James T. Wollon, Jr.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE
The Gillespie House is a two-storey log house which has been shingled. The exact age is uncertain. At This house is on lot 23 of The Manor. The 1782 sale this lot was bought by Richard Waters and at that time measured 160 acres. (-1) A certificate of survey was issued to John Stewart. (-2) A patent for this land was issued in 1793 to William Standiford. (-3) At that time, the lot measured 85<math>\frac{1}{2}</math> acres. Local legend suggests that this property has been in the Standiford family for some time. It is suggested that the land was originally occupied by Standiford shortly after a lease from Thomas Brerewood. In the leases from Thomas Brerewood, there is one in 1743 to John Standiford for 100 acres. (-4) The list of tenants in arrears in rent prior to the confiscation of the property is one Archibald Standiford, but no location is given for his residence. (-5) The 1798 Tax Assessment lists property belonging to Edmund Standiford in Harford County measuring 83 acres and containing a dwelling valued at $105. (-6) This piece of property by description is appropriate for lot 23. Unfortunately the Harford County 1798 survey does not list neighboring properties so that one cannot be absolutely certain of the site of this land. The third generation of Standifords living on The Manor, Edmund Standiford sold this farm to Luther Sutton. The property is presently owned by William Allan Gillespie. References: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1.
