

James King House
3247 Churchville Road
Churchville, MD 21028

This house has several curious features that should be noted. The hipped roof with single dormers in the front and rear flanks is uncommon in this area, where gable roofs were 'de rigueur' and early 20th century dormers were generally in pairs and triplets. This suggests the house may be older than it appears, although configuration and dimensions suggest an early 20th century date. The 1878 Martenet's Map indicates a building in this location, but ascribes no owner to it.

The portico, also, with its heavy cornice and bold Italianate basket handle arches is striking.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This two-story, el-shaped frame house covered in asbestos shingles is located on the northwesterly corner of the intersection of Churchville Road (MD. Rt. 22) and Grafton's Lane.

The structure is composed of three parts: 1) the main section on the east is three bays wide and two bays deep and has a hipped roof with a single dormer in both the east and west flanks and an exterior brick chimney on the north. 2) the 1½-story el on the west is two bays long and one room wide with a gable roof and interior brick chimney with a corbelled cap in the east end. 3) partially filling the el is a one-story shed-roofed addition that appears to be of recent construction.

Except for the latter section, most windows have 6/6 sash with louvered shutters. Both the main section and the el are set on stone foundations and have boxed cornices; the latter has gable returns, as do the dormers on the main section.

The main section faces east and has an entrance in the center bay flanked by one window on each side, with three windows in the second story. The entrance portico has a heavily-molded cornice, carved basket-handle brackets, and a railing with square balusters. A second entrance is in the western bay of the south end, flanked on the east by pairs of windows in both the first and second stories.

The el has an entrance in the east bay of the south side, flanked on the west by a window, with two six-light windows on the second story. The west end is blank except for two gable windows. Except for one window in each story, the north side is covered by the addition.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Keithley-Bodt House dates from at least the mid-1850's and perhaps earlier. It is associated with the Bodt family, who were important locally as vegetable canners in the early 20th century and were responsible for the building of several houses in Churchville. The area of the house is known as Bodt's Corner.

The first owner of record was John Keithley, whose name appears on the 1858 Martenet map for a building at this location. In 1863 and 1865, Keithley sold 2-acre parcels, the latter including a house and other improvements, to Edward A. Bodt. Bodt was a German, born in Hanover May 9, 1833, who immigrated to America at the age of 18. He was a cabinet maker and had a shop in or near the house. The shop was noted on Martenet's 1866 and 1878 maps. The Bodt family retains several pieces made by Edward Bodt. The house remained in the Bodt family until 1914.

Bodt's son William went into the vegetable canning business in Churchville and his descendants built several houses in the early 20th century on Churchville Road (see HA-1520, 1524, 1525). The cannery was sold in the 1920's or '30's and was later demolished. It was located near the present drive-in theater in Churchville.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

It is difficult to establish the age of this house. The dimensions and configuration of the main hip-roofed house suggest an early 20th century date. The rear gable-roofed portion may be the building in this location on the 1878 Martenet's Map, although no owner is ascribed to it.

Several curious features of this house should be noted. The hipped roof with single dormers in the front and rear flanks is uncommon in this area, where gable roofs were de rigueur and early 20th century dormers were generally in pairs or triplets. This gives rise to the possibility that the house may be older than it appears. The portico, also, with its heavy cornice and bold Italianate basket-handle arches is striking.
