This 2-1/2 story stone-and-frame house with 2 modern wings has been re-modelled extensively, but was the signpost of "Hoskins Corner", the intersection of Old Joppa and Whitaker Mill Roads, in the second half of the 19th century when Cheney (or Cheyney) Hoskins lived here. ## DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Hoskins-Adams House

This 2-1/2 story stone and frame house faces south at the northeast corner of the intersection of Old Joppa Road and Whitaker Mill Road.

The gable-roofed house, now T-shaped, consists of an earlier, if not originally, el-shaped structure in the center flanked on the east and west by modern (early 1950's) 1-1/2-story, 2 bay by 2 bay wings. The central structure is sheathed with German siding on the north (rear) and on the south by stone in the first story, German siding in the second.

The central part, measuring 21' x 16', is 3 bays wide and the ell, 21' x 25' 8", is 2 bays long with stone interior chimneys in the east and west ends and a stone exterior chimney in the north end of the ell. Windows have 6/6 sash and louvered shutters, although some alterations of the ell's fenestration have occurred. The roof has a raked cornice and there is 1 4-light gable-roofed dormer in the south slope of the roof. A glassed-in porch covers the 1st story center bay of the south facade where the main entrance is located. The entrance door jamb consists of fluted pilasters with a pediment with a cavetto cornice and panelled architrave - one of the few clues to the earlier existence of the house.

The interior has been re-modelled drastically and traces of the original floor plan obliterated. The 2 mantelpieces, however, seem to date from the early 19th Century. The mantelpiece in the west room has a molded shelf, a quarter-round cavetto and dented cornice and an ogee architrave and crossette trim around the opening.

"A" The 2-level gable-roofed stone and frame bark barn, northeast of the house has a rubblestone foundation and board and batten upper story. The forebay and open ground story is on the east side, the banked entrance on the west. On the interior, most of the timbers appear to be handhewn and pegged together.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

If the 1858 Jennings and Herride Map is accurate, the Hoskins-Adams House was built between 1858 and 1878 by Cheyney Hoskins. The 1858 map shows no structure in or near this location at the intersection of Whitaker Mill and Old Joppa Road; the 1878 Martenet's Map shows a building belonging to Cheyney Hoskins here.

Cheyney Hoskins acquired a large amount of acreage between 1823 and his death in 1884 in this vicinity. Part of the tract at the intersection of Old Joppa and Whitaker Mill Road was referred to in deeds as "Hoskins Corner". He also owned the Hoskins-Guidice House (HA - 1259) on Bel Air Road, which was probably some sort of commercial enterprise. When Cheyney Hoskins died, his inventory divided the house into attic; small room; south, west & north bedrooms; parlor; south room; sitting room; kitchen; and basement. His wife, Margaret, inherited his real estate,<sup>1</sup> and in 1913 willed it to her son, William G. Hoskins,<sup>2</sup> who owned the farm until 1939.

During the residency of Henry Packard and Nancy Allen White (1943-1976), the two wings were added and the original structure, inside and out, as owned by Cheyney Hoskins was extensively remodeled. The current owners have blueprints of the plans by Alex Shaw. Only its exterior dimensions, 2 mantel pieces, and the front entrance and the barn testify to a Mid-19th Century existence. The woodwork would seem to date the house to an early 19th Century date, but at this major intersection the 1858 Map probably would not have missed it. Still, as a former local "Signpost" of Hoskins Corner, the site deserves note.
