DESCRIPTION SUMMARY

The James B. Baker house is a large three story frame residence constructed in 1896 in the Queen Anne style. It is irregular in plan and form, with multiple gables, projections, dormers, and balconies enlivening its essentially square form and high hipped roof. The ground story is sheathed with clapboards, with applied vertical boards at corners and openings; the upper stories are clad in fishscale shingles. A one-story porch wraps around part of the north and east facades; second and third-story porches appear on the north and south. A truncated turret adorns the northeast corner, and a three-sided bay window rises the full height of the east facade. Double-hung windows have a large pane surrounded by eight small lights in the upper sash. The interior retains virtually all its ornament unaltered and in good condition, including oak baseboards, cornices, architraves, and chair rail, paneled doors and staircase, elaborate fireplace surrounds and overmantels. Ornate windows of leaded and colored glass light the stair landings.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION

The James B. Baker House, located at 452 West Bel Air Avenue in Aberdeen, Harford County, Maryland, is a large three story frame residence constructed in 1896 in the Queen Anne style. The house displays the irregular plan and massing, complex roof form, variety of textures, and elaborate interior and exterior ornament which typify the style. The form of the house is based on a cube with a high hipped roof, but this essential form is obscured and enlivened by a myriad of projecting bays, gables, balconies, and dormers.

The ground story of the building is sheathed with clapboards, with applied vertical boards at corners and openings suggesting the underlying framing. The upper stories are clad in fishscale shingles. A one-story porch supported on paired columns runs halfway across the principal (north) facade and wraps around the east side. On the northeast corner, a gable-roofed projection comprises a truncated turret which terminates in a third-floor balcony. Second-story porches, accessible through tall windows, appear on the north and south facades. A three-sided bay window rises the full height of the east facade, and is capped by a jerkinhead extension of a broad cross gable. Windows throughout the house have Queen Anne style sash, with one or two large clear panes in the lower sash and a large pane surrounded by eight small lights in the upper sash. Three tall chimneys rise above the steeply-hipped roof; the roof ridge has decorative cresting and finials.

The double entrance doors, decorated with multiple lights of colored glass, open into a small vestibule, which leads to a wide central hall flanked by the living room on the west and parlor and dining room separated by sliding doors on the east. Behind the living room is the stair hall. To the rear of the house is the kitchen, pantry and servants' stair. The main paneled staircase has ornate leaded and colored glass at the landings between the two upper floors. Over the living room is a bedroom and bath. On the east are bedrooms with the master bedroom over the dining room. Long windows in some bedrooms allow access to second and third floor porches. Servants quarters are to the rear of the second floor. On the third floor are storage rooms and bedrooms.

The interior of the Baker house retains virtually all its original ornament. The typical Queen Anne oak woodwork, including baseboards, cornices, paneled doors, architraves, and chair rails, is intact, mostly unpainted, and well-maintained. Each of the several fireplaces has brightly-colored glazed tile surrounding the opening. The oak mantels are elaborate and have integral overmantel mirrors, applied carved decoration, and miscellaneous shelves. In the living room the mantel is supported by stylized Ionic columns. The large mirror is flanked by panels and candle stands. Its carved decoration is typical Queen Anne with sunburst and garlands. The parlor has the most elaborate mantelpiece with a beveled mirror in the center flanked by two smaller mirrors over carved panels. Fireplaces on the second floor are similar but less ornate. The stair has a large square newel supporting a figurine holding an electrically lit torch. The string is heavily molded and stocky; closely set balusters support the handrail. On the first floor there is some spindle work over doorways and mantels. Throughout the house are original radiators and interior shutters.

Two outbuildings contemporaneous with the house remain on the property. The stable/carriage house, 24' X 58' overall, is two stories in height with two large ventilators on the ridge of its gable roof. Behind the stable is an unidentified 1½ story structure measuring 14' X 18'. Both are of frame construction with board-and-batten siding.

BOUNDARY JUSTIFICATION

The house and outbuildings stand on two city lots, comprising 1.59 acres in total.

Statement of Significance (in one paragraph)

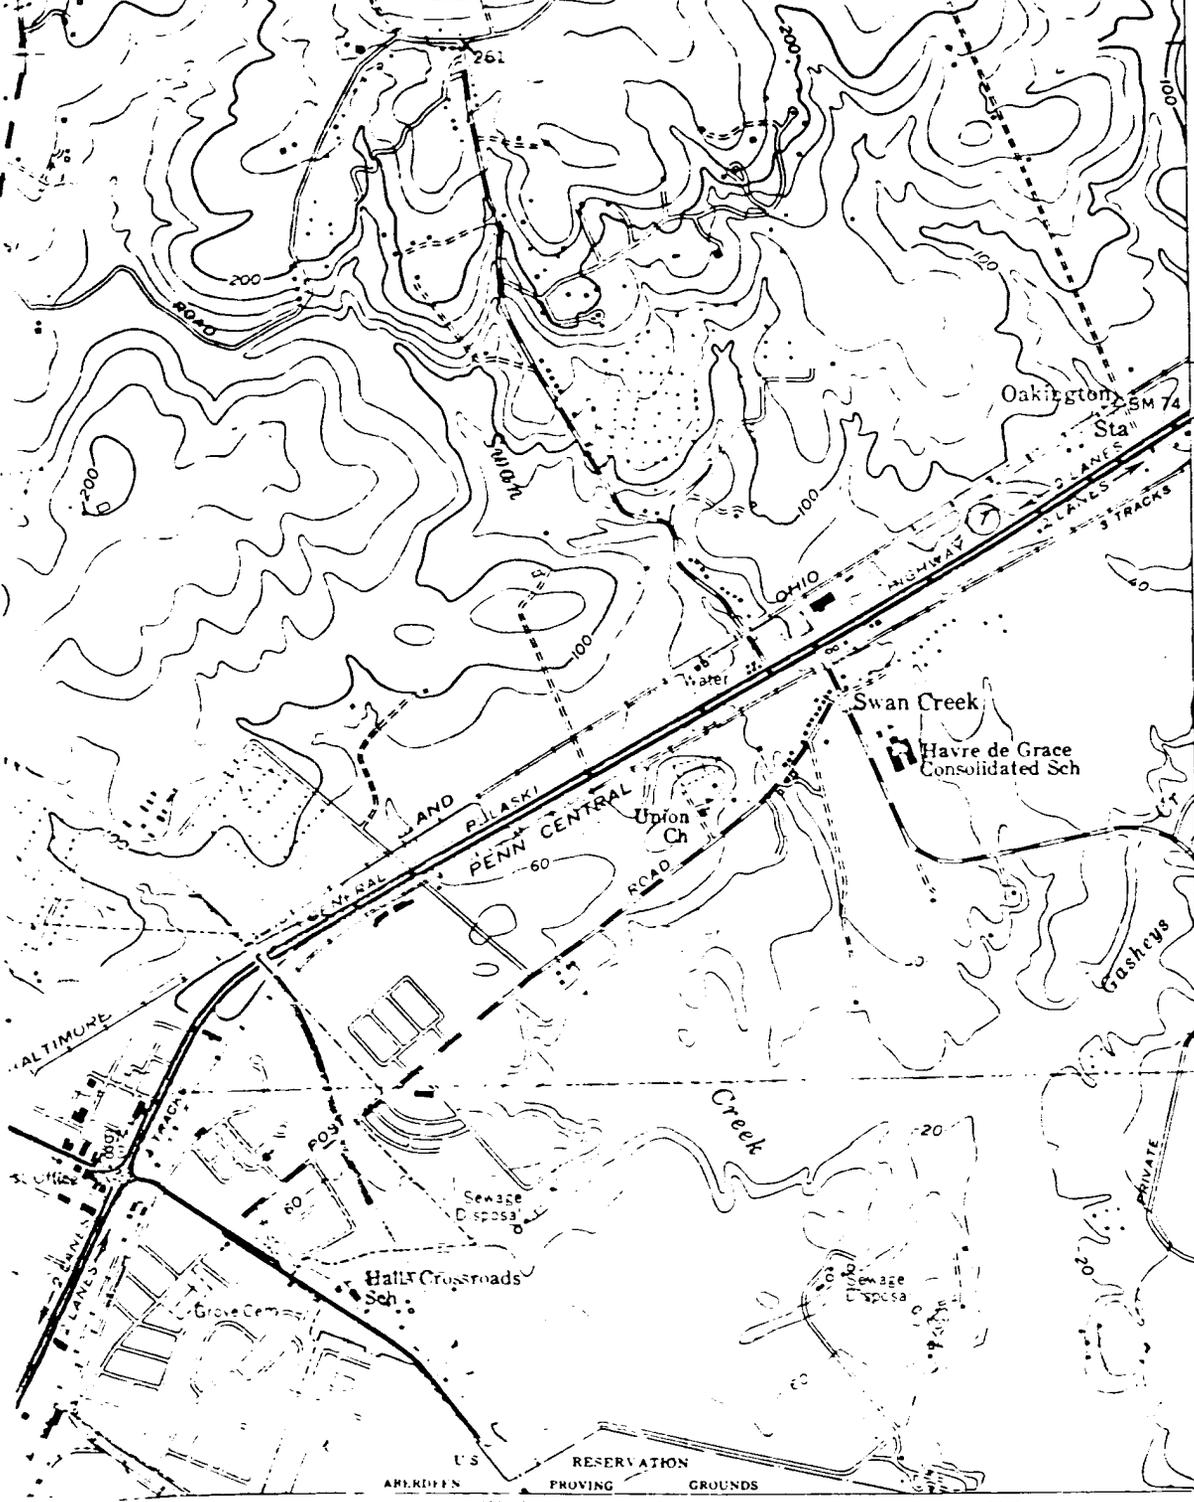

Applicable Criteria: B and C

SIGNIFICANCE SUMMARY

The significance of the James B. Baker House in Aberdeen, Harford County, derives from two sources. First, as the residence of James B. Baker, a leading entrepreneur in the canning industry and a son of Harford County's pioneer canner, the house is associated with the life of a person who figured prominently in an industry that was a major factor in the economic development of Harford County in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Secondly, the James B. Baker house is significant for its architecture: as a provincial example of the Queen Anne style which was commonly associated in the late 19th century with high-status, urban properties, it expresses the prosperity which the canning industry brought to the Baker family and to the community of Aberdeen. The house embodies the distinctive characteristics of the Queen Anne style in its irregular massing, complex roof form, variety of siding textures, stained and leaded glass, and interior ornament. It is in good condition and remains essentially unaltered, and as such is probably the best surviving example of a large Queen Anne residence in Harford County.

HISTORY AND SUPPORT

From 1880 through the beginning of World War I, canning of fruits and vegetables was the third most important industry in Maryland. (Walsh and Fox, p. 403). Harford was one of the counties which led the state in the industry. George T. Baker (James B. Baker's father) is credited with establishing the canning industry in Harford County; he built the first canning house in the county in 1867, and recorded a production of 900 cases of corn in 1874. During the next half-century, the canning industry grew rapidly, until over 50 canneries were engaged in preserving the abundant corn and tomatoes grown in central and southern Harford County. Each of George T. Baker's five sons owned and operated a cannery (Wright, p. 163). In addition to his cannery, James B. Baker (born 1845) owned a factory in Odessa, Delaware, and two farms nearby; he was also Aberdeen's first postmaster.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

In 1896, this home was built and occupied by James Bramwell Baker, and remained in his family until June 1978 when it was sold to David Walden who is now the occupant. Mr. Walden was formerly from Washington, DC.

The building site was obtained by deed dated May 13, 1896, Liber 79, Folio 239 from the Aberdeen Land and Improvement Company to William A. Baker and James B. Baker (brothers). Both this house and the home of William A. Baker were built on this property which originally totaled approximately 60 acres. There was no division of the property between the homes until October 31, 1922, when a deed of partition was effected between Hollis R. Baker, and G. Harold Baker. Following the partition the 452 West Bel Air property totaled approximately 25 acres.

SPECIFIC DATES BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This house was build and occupied by James Bramwell Baker who was one of five brothers who pioneered in the canning industry, That industry along with agriculture was the leading industry of the county in the late 19th century. (See enclosed bulletin). Mr. Baker further distinguished himself as a community organizer, serving as town commissioner; was in charge of the Aberdeen post office under President Garfield; and was instrumental in establishing the only newspaper, THE ABERDEEN ENTERPRISE.

Of predominantly Victorian design the house is frame (Georgian Pine) with weatherboards and shaped wooden shingles combined for a deliberate architectural effect; 17 rooms; totally asymmetrical in design, yet balanced; deliberately designed to be picturesque on very large lot for proper setting. The plantings include large Norway Maple, Jingo, Purple Beach and other specimen plantings. As Mr. Baker was a fancier of flowers and trees, the outbuildings included a very large greenhouse, in which he experimented with plants, developing new varieties of his own. Two outbuildings including a large barn and smaller shop building still remain.

Inside, the 9 foot-highrooms are beautifully trimmed with different woods in each room. The living-music room is birds-eye maple; the living-room and library is cherry; and the dining room, oak. Five tiled fire places adorn rooms on the first and second stories. An ornate oak stairway with heavy paneling on the first floor joins the three stories. Servants quarters are in the rear. Original shutters both inside and out are still in place.

The Bakers of Aberdeen, descendants of a colonial era Nicholas Baker, were perhaps the most prominent family in the Aberdeen area in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century. They were leaders in the canning industry, in government, the Methodist Episcopal Church, farming, banking and real estate. They built imposing Victorian residences in Aberdeen and established the local cemetery which bears the family name and contains a number of large monuments to mark their own final resting places. ("The Baker Family of Aberdeen" by Jon Harlan Livezey, Harford Historical Bulletin No. 16)

The lots of Charles W. Baker, James B. Baker (this) and Wm. B. Baker were purchased in 1893 from the Aberdeen Land and Improvement Co. (Liber WSF 75, Folio 424) and all three houses were built soon thereafter.

Large ornate frame house, 2 1/2 stories, clapboard and sheajle covered with slate roof. A porch shelters the east and north sides of the house, a two-story porch is at the back or south side, and a third-story balcony at the north.

Windows are 1 light over 1 except at the door where colored glass is in small panes, as the turret windows where small panes circle the upper sash, and at the stair landing where a clear ripple glass by Tiffany forms a three-part decoration.

The floor plan is not bound by symmetry; Central heating permitted more flexible design.
