DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Rock Run Millers House, located on Rock Run Road at Stafford Road is a two-storey, three bay wide one bay deep, heavily quoined fieldstone structure. The gable roof is wood-shingled with rake boards on both gable end and a boxed cornice. This dwelling was little more than a shell when acquired by the State in the early 1960's. It has since been extensively rehabilitated by Park authorities.

The main (south) facade is defined by a central doorway flanked by small 4/4 sashed windows on the first storey and two identical windows above these windows on the second storey. Both doorway and windows are trimmed by simple wooden surrounds. The windows are flanked by vertical boarded shutters.

The east gable end has been covered with stucco. A central doorway on the first storey and two four-light fixed-sashed windows at attic level characterize this facade.

A one storey frame wing has been added to the west gable end thus obscuring the original fenestration of this facade. A central doorway flanked to the east by a 6/6 sashed window defines the south facade. A shed-roofed dormer is centrally located on the gable roof which dramatically overhangs this facade.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The following is taken from information collected by Paul Penrod in 1976 as is the attached title search.

"This building is part of the original Rock Run Mill property and probably built at the same time as the mill or soon afterwards. The tract was part of the larger "Lane of Promise," which was developed first by Jacob Giles in the mid-1700's. Giles constructed a mill of his own near the site of the existing gristmill. Joan Stump acquired the land on which the Miller's house is built from the heirs of Jacob's son Nathaniel, in 1797. Stump had already purchased a second lot for the mill itself in 1791.

When the Susquehanna and Tidewater Canal opened in 1840, the dwelling not only housed the Miller, but it doubled as an inn for the waterways travellers.

During the Archer ownership of the mill the building continued to be used by the lessee Millers, but after the 1870's, it was no longer suitable as a residence, which might explain the condition it was in when it was acquired by the State of Maryland."

This dwelling has been extensively reconstructed by the park authorities, for when it was acquired, there were only the walls still left standing. Almost all of the non-stone features have been replaced. The walls of this two-story building are of uncoursed rubble stone, quoined at the corners. The south-west-facing building also has a newly-constructed, one-story, frame wing on the western side. The addition is two bays by one, while the original house is three bays by one. All of the stone portion's windows are very small and are 4 X 4's, with the exception of the attic windows, which are 2 X 2. Simulation board-and-batten doors are located on the southwest, eastern and northeastern sides of the stone section, as well as on the southeastern side of the addition. The roof is gable-flank, with wood shingles, and underneath it is a box cornice and eave trim. A single shed dormer is located on the southeast-facing roof of the new wing. One original brick chimney is located on the eastern inside-end of the stone building, while an outside-end stack is emplaced on the northeast embrasure of the wing.

In 1984 the Department of Natural Resources contracted with Joe Getty to conduct a follow-up survey of selected historic properties on DNR lands. DNR funded the field survey and photography but did not prepare finished copy. The attached photocopy pages were forwarded to the Maryland Historical Trust to supplement existing files. All original material and photographs remain in the possession of the Department of Natural Resources under the supervision of Ross Kimmel (x3771).
