Meadow Farm
Conowingo Road
Darlington, MD 21034

This frame and stone house, though obviously old, does not appear to match measurements given on the 1798 Federal Tax List under either Aquila Massey or Isaac Massey. Isaac Massey is assessed as owning a stone house with a wood kitchen but the present stone house is difficult to measure due to additions in the rear. The 1814 Maryland Tax List is too incomplete to ascertain the existence of this house at that time either.

The large frame unit is thought to have been built in the 1830's by one of the Massey's. Their name shows as the owner of this house on both the 1858 Jennings and Herrick Map, as well as the Martenet Map of 1878.

The house is located on a portion of the large tract of land called "Phillip's Purchase," which was patented by Thomas Tench, the grandfather of Col. Nathan Rigbie. Aquila Massey's widow, Sarah, is said to have married Col. Nathan Rigbie's son, Col. James Rigbie.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The house on Meadow Farm is located off Route 1, Conowingo Road in Darlington. It faces northeast.

The largest unit of this house is a two and one half story clapboard structure built onto high rubble stone foundations. The basement is lighted. The unit is three bays by two.

This portion of the house is believed to have been built between 1825 to 1830. The gable flank slate roof has a box cornice and wide eaves. A corbeled brick chimney is located on the eastern slope and the western slope of the roof's south end. These are on the inside gable end. Two pedimented gable dormers are located on the eastern slope of the roof. Sashes are six lights over six with the upper sash being slightly curved. The dormers' roof and sides are slate covered.

This unit of the house is laid out in a side through hall floor plan. The principle entrance is on the eastern facade. The wide, Dutch door has a four light transom overhead. The corresponding door on the west is also large: it has six small moulded panels on the upper part and two larger panels on the lower. Both doors have brass and iron box locks. Each door has a one story entrance porch with square columns. The porch on the east has seven steps leading up to the entrance landing.

Windows through out this unit have six over six sashes. The windows have louvered shutters. The two upper level windows and attic windows on the south gable end are nestled between the chimneys. An enclosed porch runs the length of the south gable end at the first elevation. This summer porch was added around 1895.

Inside, the house has two rooms off the side through hall. Each room is approximately 17 square feet. This unit has its original pine floors. Fireplaces are in each room on the first and second elevation. The fireplaces in the east rooms have been altered for use by the furnace.

The hall stairway is located in the southwest corner. It has a plain handrail and newel and low treds. A door has been cut into the wall at the top of the stairs for access to a bedroom in a unit added in about 1880. An entrance to the next unit is near the center of the north wall. This has an eight panel door. The next unit is on a much lower level than the first.

The middle unit is three bays long and two stories high. It is built onto low rubblestone foundations. The unit had originally been one story but its roof was raised in the 1800's. The first elevation's east facade is stuccoed, walls elsewhere are plain clapboard. Windows on the west facade are six lights over six and have louvered shutters. A wide, plain doorway is in the center bay. The door is not original. The slate roof is gable flank and there is a corbeled brick chimney located at its north inside end.

The west facade of this unit was altered in the 1880's by the Evans family. Two small, 6/6 windows are near this side's north end. A wide door with a four

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (Include Personages, Dates, Events, Etc.)

The largest wing of this farmhouse was built by Miss Hannah Evans of Philadelphia in 1877 for her summer home. The middle section was probably built about 1800. The small wing is a recent (1951) replacement of the old log house that belonged to Aquilla Mossey of Col. ^{Notker} Bagbie's small band of followers who penetrated their northern outpost of Colvort's domain in about 1735. Aquilla Mossey's widow Sarah married Bagbie's son James, ~~and they are~~ believed to have lived here, perhaps until Col. Bagbie died in 1752, ^{after} when he lived at the Bagbie House (HA 4). Only the old preface, oven, and chimney remain.

light transom is near the center and a window near the south end is eight lights over eight. The second elevation of this facade hangs over the first elevation and is supported by four square columns. The overhang is about one foot. A three sided bay has been added to the second elevation there are two 6/6 windows on the bay. A pedimented center gable is directly over this bay. It has an oval, louvered vent in the center. On the north end is a diamond-shaped, louvered, vent. Beneath that is a pair of 6/6 windows. Changes in the roof slope are highly visible on the west facade.

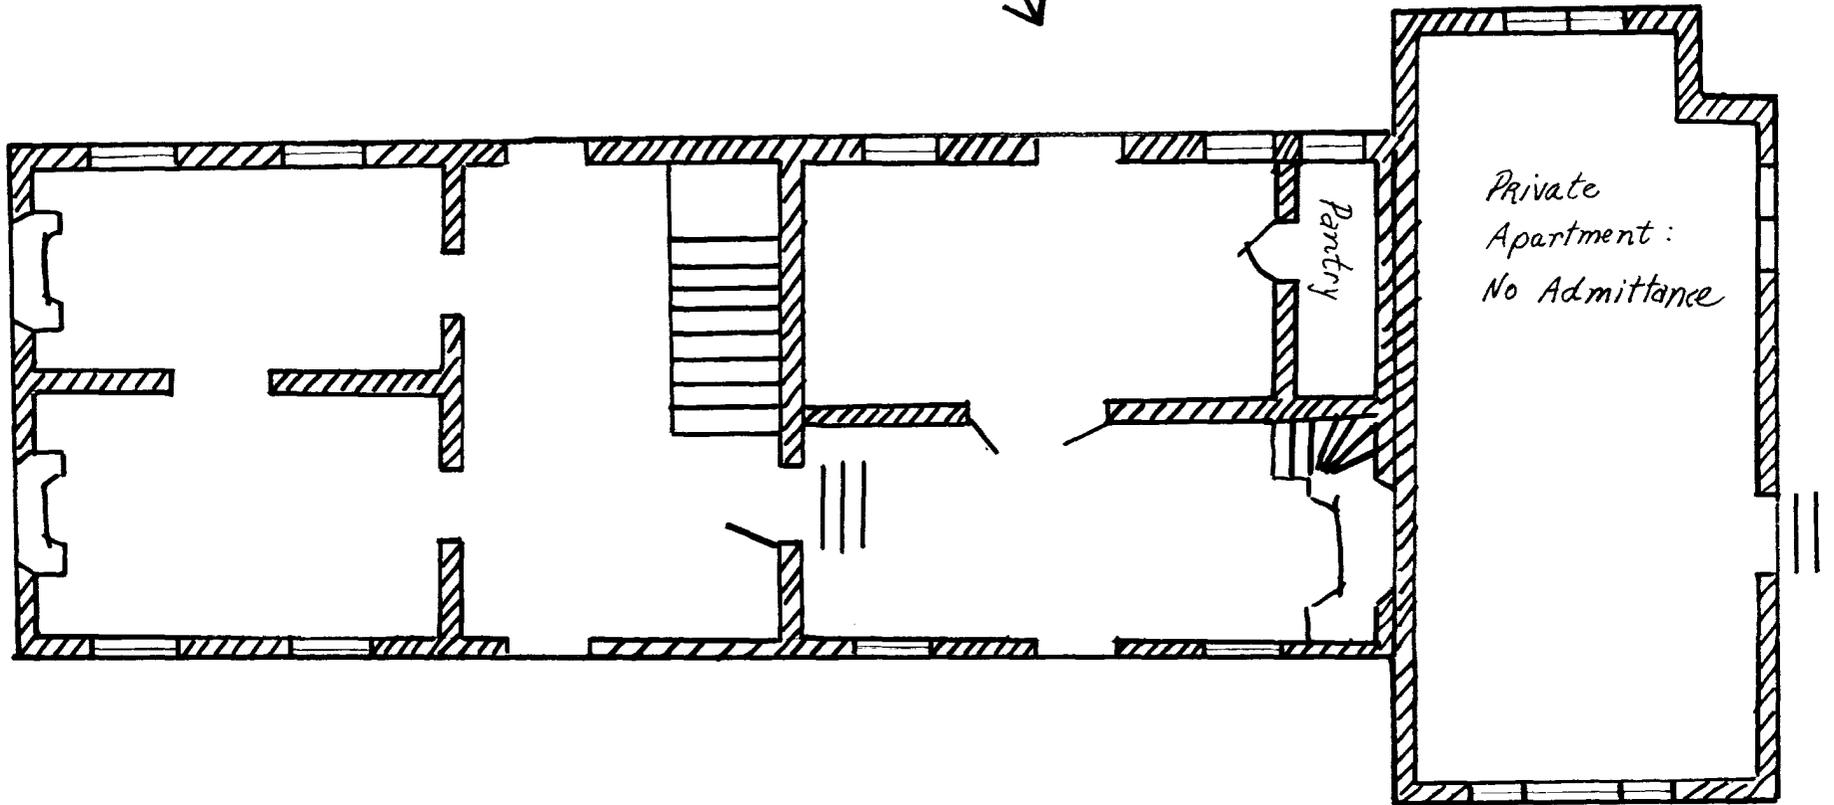

Inside this unit is divided into two rooms on each floor. A kitchen and dining room are on the first floor. A kitchen is in the west room and is incorporated into the 1830's addition. The dining room is in the original kitchen. A fireplace is located on the north wall and winding stairs are boxed into the northwest corner of the room.

Samuel Mason, Jr., a relative of the Evans Family, wrote in his Historical Sketches of Harford County, "The dwelling was built in two parts, the larger probably about 1830 while the central section and kitchen were standing during the revolution. The kitchen, previous to recent alterations, was not log but built of frame with hewn slabs of poplar dropped between the studding; and these were then weatherboarded over. This method of building antedates the log cabin where the land was settled by English people as they built frame houses with filled interstices in England and habits are hard to change."

A private apartment with a separate entrance has been constructed out of the rubble stone and frame unit which was a storage unit for the house. It has been altered drastically.
