DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Dr. Silas B. Silver House is a 2-1/2 story vernacular stone house with Italianate details which was built in 1858 on the south side of Harmony Church Road about 1/4 mile west of the intersection with Darlington Road (Md. Rt. 161) in Harford County, Maryland. The house faces north toward a panoramic view of the Deer Creek valley.

The house is sited on a hill and stands about 250 yards south of the road. The plan is basically square with a slate hipped roof and wide bracketed cornice. The main elevation on the north has five bays with a central gabled dormer and two flanking dormers with pointed arched windows. The central dormer has a brick arched window on the top story and paired lancet windows under a belcast, bracketed hood at the second floor level. A one-story porch shelters the central doorway. The doorway has a rectangular transom and side lights. The west elevation has two bays and a bay window on the first floor. The east elevation has three bays and an enclosed porch which appears to be a modern addition. Two interior brick chimneys are located at the east and west ends of the house.

Two small frame outbuildings are located about forty feet southeast of the house. One is a woodshed, with a stone foundation and vertical siding. The roof is presently metal, but may have originally been wood shingles. Next to the woodshed on the east is a stone icehouse with a below-ground floor where the ice was stored, and an upper level for meat storage. The icehouse is square in plan with a shingled roof and a small cupola.

A modern garage is located about 30 yards east of the main house. Approximately 20 yards east of the garage is a frame wagon shed or carriage house. This building has board and batten siding and a scalloped bargeboard. A frame barn stands about 40 yards east of the carriage house. Also on the property south of the barn is a modern mobile home and, at the bottom of the hill to the south, a modern residence.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Dr. Silas B. Silver House or "Silverton" is the most architecturally elaborate of the Silver houses in the Darlington-Harmony Church area. The wide bracketed cornice, arched dormer windows, and bracketed hood on the main facade are elements of the Italianate style which was fashionable for country houses in the mid-19th century. With the Benjamin Silver House (HA-398) across the road to the north, Silverton forms the westernmost boundary of the Silver farms in the area.

HISTORY AND SUPPORT:

Dr. Silas B. Silver (1815-1883) was the brother of Benjamin, John A., and Jeremiah Silver, all of whom built large stone houses in the same area during the 1850's. Dr. Silver was one of the four Silver brothers who married four Pannell sisters. He was the most prolific diarist in the Silver family, describing not only events in his own life, but also local, state and national events, weather, illnesses and other daily news in the area. A selection of items from his diaries was published in B.S. Silver's Our Silver Heritage; copies of the pertinent pages are attached. Of special interest is the entry for April 1, 1858, in which Dr. Silver writes that Mr. Reasin, the architect of Silverton, was employed to design the exterior only of Dr. Silver's new house, for which he was paid $100. Dr. Silver and Benjamin Silver together designed the interior. Dr. Silver also names the masons, carpenters, plasterers, and "undertaker" or contractor for Silverton. The family moved into the house on September 12, 1859, when the house was not yet finished. The next day, September 13, they named the new house "Silverton."

NOTE: Old survey number HA-408 (Icehouse) is consolidated under HA-407 in this form.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTION:

The datestone to the left of the arched window in the north gable of the house reads "1859". On the right of the window is a stone inscribed "Dr. S. & Mrs. S."

The building labeled an "icehouse" in Photo # 2 and described in Section 7 actually had a double use: The eastern half of the building was a smokehouse and brick vents are located in the east and south elevations. The west half of the building has a small window on the south elevation and may have been used as a root cellar.

A frame henhouse is located about 50 feet southwest of the house. A frame corncrib stands about 50 feet south of the wagon shed. Both have vertical siding and the corn crib has battens.

CHAPTER VI

SECTION 3

Sub-Section 4

SILAS BENJAMIN SILVER of Benjamin and Charity Warnock Silver

It is regrettable that someone of Dr. Silas Benjamin Silver's brothers or sisters did not record a description of Silas, however, we are most fortunate in that he, for thirty-two years (1836-1875) except 7 years 1847, 1848, 1849, 1850, 1851, 1852, and 1853, maintained a diary. All thirty-two diaries were in the possession of Albert P. Silver on 7 November 1902. On 8 November of that year he loaned 9 to Isabel Milton (1867-1875) and on 17 February 1903 he again loaned 3 more (1876-1879) to the same person. All were returned to him. However, of the thirty-two, only one is available. Summaries of those during the years 1854-1875 are also available. This is most disturbing because, like the Biblical Luke, Silas' powers of observation were very keen.

Since the summaries of his diaries made by Albert P. Silver are the only real available references, ninety-nine percent of this portion is taken directly there from, and the reader should remember these are quotations.

Silas Benjamin Silver obtained his early education in the same school as his brothers and sisters. On 22 July 1835 he graduated from Union College with an AB Degree and on 6 April 1838 received an M.D. Degree from the University of Pennsylvania along with 44 others.

On 26 November 1857 he married Susan Schaeffer Pannell. They spent their honeymoon in Philadelphia. Susan was the daughter of James and Susan Schaeffer Pannell. James Pannell was the son of Edwin and Sarah Pannell. James was born 20 March 1784 and married Susan 3 December 1854. Susan was the daughter of George and Catherine Schaeffer and was born 14 November 1790 and died 30 April 1862.

Thus, it can be seen, he began keeping a diary three years before marriage. The following are the most important entries from his diary of 1854. "1 January Rev. William Finney resigned as pastor of the Church at Churchville being pastor for 40 years. 29 January Sunday visited to see Mr. Stephen Boyd who is in the last stage of consumption. 30 January the market, during the month, grain has advanced owing to the Russian and Turkey War. Wheat $2, corn 90¢ to $1.00. 11 February a meeting of farmers at the Darlington Academy to take into consideration the transportation of grain on the Tide Water Canal. 18 February Stephen Boyd died of consumption about 4 o'clock age about 60 years. He was when in health a very large portly man. 20 February at the funeral of Mr. Boyd who was buried at Harmony Church." During these years Silas subscribed to the following papers: Weekly Baltimore Patriot, Harford Gazette and the Daily Sun. "30 May Tuesday a great calamity an explosion in Wilmington of three teams loaded with gun powder awful destruction. 26 August B. Silver is opening a public road from James F. Reasin to the road leading by Death's Ford to Churchville."

From 1 August through 23 August, Silas in company with Mary Charity Silver visited the Virginia Springs, Rock Bridge. "12 September Tuesday sold part of my crop of corn last week in Philadelphia 181 bu at 93¢ per bu. 30 September Saturday the Rock Run Post Office is closed. There being no one to keep it. 2 October a petition for a post office at Green Spring was sent around by me. Green Spring was changed to Clifton, being another name in Md. 6 October I visited Washington City, with a petition for a post office at Clifton. It was granted. I was introduced to H. King 1st Asst Postmaster and Mr. Dundee 2nd asst. 26 October serious accident! The Port de Posit Bridge -- two stretches were broken down and 80 head of cattle in the water - 15 had their legs broken, also 2 of the drivers went down but were not hurt. 28 October Saturday yesterday sold my wheat for $1.92 to Wilmer W. Davis.

Nov. 1 The Post Master General, has appointed a new post office called Glenville near Dr. Worthington's. I took the petition with 26 names on the 1st of October and had the appointment made at Washington. 11 November The new post office Glenville, Harford County, Maryland is this day opened. 3 December Sunday William Pannell died about 10 'clock today -- his disease complicated hydrathorax. He was sick 4-5 weeks and was tended by myself assisted by Dr. Polk and Finney. He was 71 years of age and was buried in Churchville 5 December. 28 December Thursday this day made an appraisement of the personal property of Jane Pannell (deceased) by William P. Silver and myself."

There are no entries made for the year 1855.

"25 January 1856 I have had during the past week a store room fitted up in my new house at Glenville. 12 February at the sale of the late James C. Doddrell place, at Darlington and bid for it for William Easter to the amount of $6,500.00 and it was knocked off to me, it calls for 96 acres. 19 March sale at Sarah Bayless she leaves the old homestead of the Bayless family. 22 March Chesney made a contract on August 5, 1855 to build my house at Glenville and after working had left it unfinished and brought an action v.s. me for balance of contract. 24 March I drew a petition to the Post Office Department asking for change of routes 3944 and 3950 giving a daily mail to Hopewell and Glenville. HOMES ON DEER CREEK.

BY W. STUMP FORWOOD, M. D., OF DARLINGTON, MD.

No. 3.

"Tis sweet to hear the watch-dog's honest bark
When some one's coming, and to see the "Tis sweet to know that an eye will mark
Our coming, and look brighter when we come."
—Byron.

Eagerly desiring that all of our statements shall be as accurate as possible, ever upon minor points, we found it necessary in our second paper to correct an error of omission on the part of the printer which occurred in the first letter; and now, in turn, we take occasion to rectify an error of commission, on our own part, which was inadvertently made in the second paper, viz: "Adjoining the Bayless property, and we believe formerly a portion of it, is the Harmony Church lot." A friend has drawn our attention to the fact that the church lot was not a portion of the Bayless property; but that it belonged to, and was donated by the late Benjamin Silver, Senior, for church purposes. Although quite a youth at the time, we do now distinctly remember that such was the fact. The subject was much discussed in our community at the time the erection of the original church was in contemplation; and we believe that, in addition to the presentation of the beautiful ground, Mr. Silver also materially aided in the erection of the church. We remember also that Mr. Silver's liberality in this connection was much commended and warmly applauded by his numerous friends throughout the surrounding neighborhood. It is eminently fitting that this record should be correctly made, especially for the information of those who will come after us.

Mr. Silver's mortal remains was one of the first, if we remember aright, to find its last resting-place in the new grave-yard, and under the shadow of the church, where so many of his immediate and remote kindred have since been laid.

SILVERTON.

Continuing our rambles among some of the Homes that occupy and ornament the vale of our loved Deer Creek, the next property that comes in rotation with the one last described is "Silverton," the picturesque and beautiful residence of our long-time and much esteemed friend and fellow craft, Dr. S. B. Silver. "Silverton" stands like a watch-tower on the hill, the sentinel for the entire surrounding country. It occupies a higher location than any dwelling of large proportions in the vicinity, on the south side of the creek, and overlooks some of the finest country that ever the sun

The view from Silverton not only comprehends the magnificent Deer Creek valley, where careful and educated farming have produced the most abundant yield, but, in the unfolding of Nature's grand panorama, views can be obtained of York and Lancaster counties, in Pennsylvania; also of Cecil, and, we believe, a partial view of Kent county, Maryland, beyond the beautiful Chesapeake. Gazing from this and from other points in the vicinity, over the verdant hills and fertile valleys of the noble Deer Creek, the words of rapture expressed by the great poet upon his first beholding the fair Andalusian vales of Spain, have oft and oft again arisen in our thoughts of the grand and beautiful:

"Oh, Christ! it is a goodly sight to see
What Heaven hath done for this delicious land!
What fruits of fragrance blush on every tree!
What goodly prospect o'er the hills expand!"
—Byron.

"Silverton" is constructed of choice and selected stone, under the careful direction of its present owner, and unites the beautiful with the substantial and durable. Notwithstanding its high and exposed location to the winds of the North, the walls of Silverton will endure for centuries, and will remain as a monument to the care and forethought of him under whose supervision it was erected.

We do not remember the exact year in which Silverton was built, but believe it dates back twenty-one or twenty-two years. The door and window sills and lintels, are of massive granite from the quarries at Port Deposit, and are all beautifully dressed. The corners, and the greater part of the stone in the front, are also of the same handsome granite.

A wide verandah with substantial pillars, adorns the front of the dwelling, over which an uncovered observatory forms the roof, which is entered by a door from the upper hall-way. This, apart from the charming scenery already referred to as visible from this point, is a delightfully cool and pleasant place to occupy upon a warm summer afternoon, while the sun is declining upon the opposite side of the building. From this observatory, with the aid of a field-glass, the finest view can be obtained of the fairest portion of the Deer Creek hills and of the many fine farms and farm buildings beyond, in the direction of Darlington. This scene is of the kind that was in the mind of the poet:

"Scenes must be beautiful which daily view'd
Please daily, and whose novelty survives
Long knowledge and the scrutiny of years."
—Cooper's Think.

The heavily hooded dormer windows, and the far projecting eaves of the roof of the building are striking, and very effective in the eyes of the beholder, and give the building a more finished and ornamental appearance than that usually found in the construction of stone houses. Every part of the structure has been built with special regard to durability and beauty.

The doctor was among the last of his brothers in the building of their houses, and in the modelling of his he appears to have combined all of the good points that they had adopted, and added other improvements, either useful or ornamental, which later experience and observation had suggested.

The grounds surrounding are quite in keeping with the dwelling. A splendid and spacious lawn, consisting of six or eight acres, slopes grandly down to the public road in front, like a charming landscape painted by the hand of a master. Beautiful evergreen trees, in endless variety, planted singly, and in groups, dot the lawn with their unfolding verdure; while near the dwelling are many bright beds of flowers, which, in the spring, summer and autumn, delight the eyes of all beholders with their profusion of rare and sweet blossoms. In the arrangement of the trees, we have manifested the care and the good taste of the Doctor, but the credit for the management of the flowers and shrubbery, which adorn the grounds of Silverton, is to be awarded to the fair hostess, whose taste for the beautiful in Nature lightens the labor of their culture, and reduces it to "a labor of love." And to the kindness and courtesy of the lady who presides so gracefully at Silverton, we have often, in the days gone by, been indebted for many a beautiful bouquet.

In the language of Rip Van Winkle:
"May they," the occupants of Silverton,
"live long and prosper!"

We are not aware of the number of acres comprised in the Doctor's beautiful farm, but feel very certain that he owns as many as any one farmer can cultivate to advantage. It is a misfortune, we think, for one man to own as much land as many of our Deer Creek farmers do. With a fewer number of acres they could raise quite as much grain and provender as they now do, and do it with proportionately less labor and expense. Doubtless many subdivisions of our farms will be made in the future, and two families will then reap their living from the same area of land that is now thought necessary for the support of one.— Their subsistence, too, will be quite as bountiful, upon their reduced acres, as it now is to those who spend their labor in half tilling a large extent of surface.

The Doctor's farm is well cultivated, and is in fine producing condition, and his cares in life should, by all rational deductions, rest lightly upon him. We trust they do, and 'tis our hope, too, that Time will deal gently with him, and extend him pleasant walks through many a flowing vale, until that good old age at last is reached, when, "we would rather pine and die than live." To him we are indebted for much friendly professional aid and counsel in our student-days, and in our early professional career. He has rendered his aid in emergencies, when the responsibilities upon our inexperienced shoulders seemed to be more than we could bear. He little knows how thankful for his attentions we have been, and he will doubtless feel surprised to find it recorded on this page.

Parting with "Silverton," and its kindly host and hostess, with many pleasant remembrances, we next arrive at the little post-town of Glenville.

Glenville is still in infancy, in size, as well as in years. Evidently its day is yet to come. The village, which adjoins Dr. Silver's property and, we believe, is partly built upon it, consists of a post-office, two stores of general merchandise, a blacksmith, and a wheelwright shop, a shoe shop and five or six houses.

Our well known and favorably known J. Franklin, owns the property immediately upon the south side and that of a portion of the village the last four or five years Mr. erected a most beautiful frame dwelling, most approved modern cottage, a number of ornamental porches, some bay-windows, resembling most tasteful and picturesque villa in the suburbs of the large city, most stylish building of the kind in the neighborhood. Mr. Reasin a very pretty lawn about his house planted a number of evergreen trees with shrubbery and flowers.

The farm that Mr. Reasin now tills so successfully, was formerly of the late Dr. Thomas C. We practitioner who enjoyed great success in his day, and who struggled through many a year, with a large, laborious, unremunerative practice. The Doctor's mistake, as we can see now, of directing attention to the practice of his profession, he did to the cultivation of his farm, as a pecuniary success was concerned, it was a great mistake of his life. He was mentally and physically by the attention which engaged his attention day, to the consequent neglect of that was stored in the soil of his farm. For the vast and unceasing labor of the body, incurred in the practice of reaching from early manhood to old age, he received no adequate reward at last in comparative poverty. His now yields abundant harvests to each return of autumn, and with and tear of life that his profession had, remained comparatively valueless in his hands, for want of attention that he was so assiduously devoting to the relief of the suffering, the prolongation of the lives of people, many of whom shared the advantage of his generosity and heart in not paying him the pittance for his service, they well knowing that not exact it of them except as a voluntary tender.

If there be any one of his number yet living who received the same kind-hearted physician—for such both senses of the term, uniting ministry with the practice of medicine—a speaker in the Orthodox Firm—I repeat, if any one still lives who prolonged, or rendered more complete the skill of this good man, an able, refused to remunerate him, and thus contributed toward his poverty and sorrow upon his old age forgiveness for the past; and as ever liberally reward his physician, as the only amends now possible for past delinquency!

If there exists in the brain of man the merest unformed and unevolution of devoting his life to the medicine as a means of success
