DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This two story, bevel frame house faces north and consists of two sections which form an el shape. The house is built onto high, stuccoed, stone foundations. The main part of the house is 3 bays by 2. The front door in this section is in the center bay on the north. It has a four light transom and the door is flanked by sidelights, each with 2 panes of glass. Windows are two lights over two, with louvered shutters. The gable flank roof is covered with slate. Two brick chimneys are on either inside gable end. The roof forms a gable peak above the center bay. A small, semi-circular arched window is directly below this peak. The roof has wide eaves.

The wing, to the south of the main section, is 2 bays by 2. A chimney is located on the south inside end. A porch on the south side of this section is one story high and has a shed roof. A screened in porch on the south west side of this section leads into a west entrance. The roof of this porch abuts the roof of the house. There is also an entrance on the southeast bay of this section.

Inside, there are no fireplaces but rather openings for stove pipes in the chimney walls. The owner informed us that there had been an old Franklin stove in the house but it had been removed by the previous owner. Mantles are present and are of wood. There are two separate staircases leading to the second floor: A rather formal one in the main section and a set of back stairs above the cellar entrance in the south wing.

On the porch south of the house is a structure which the owner called a "Well House." This is an asphalt covered hip roof attached to four plain, wooded columns or supports. It serves as a cover for an old, manual pump.

Two out buildings, a smoke house and a chicken coop, have been torn down.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The importance of this frame dwelling lies in its relationship with the Jerusalem Mill. It is difficult to pin point its date of construction although it appears to have been built late in the 19th century. The Martenet Map of 1878 shows that the property on which this house stand was owned by David Lee. David Lee owned much of the land surrounding his mill and it is believed that the dwelling in question was constructed to house the mill foreman and his family.

The style of architecture of this structure is fairly common in this area. The style itself is a simplified victorian house with little ornamentation.

The Railey House, forms, with other houses and buildings in that area, the Jerusalem Mill Community.
