Zamzow's Log House
Robinson Mill Road
Darlington, MD 21034

This log house was probably built in the early 1800's and has long been associated with the various owners of Robinson's Mill. The McCoys, the Bells and the Robinsons have all owned this house.

The house itself has a center chimney and an enclosed stair which winds around the flue.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This two story log house is almost square in its appearance and is covered with asphalt shingles. It is built onto low stone foundations. The house is four bays by one. Windows on the first elevation are nine lights over six; on the second elevation they are six lights over six. Windows have louvered shutters. Two doors are located on the principal facade which faces southeast. These doors are on the end bays.

The gable flank roof is covered with slate. There is a box cornice. A large, corbeled stone chimney is located in the center of the roof. It services three fireplaces.

A one story porch runs the length of the southeast facade.

Inside, the main unit of this house is divided into two rooms. An enclosed, winding stair leads to the second elevation. The two massive, back-to-back fireplaces have been closed by the present tenants. The fireplace in the northeast room was a cooking fireplace and had a large iron crane. Both rooms have plastered walls and ceilings as well as chair rails.

Pegged beams are visible in the attic. The beams are made of logs.

A one story kitchen addition is located on the northwest.
