DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

401 South Washington Street is a two story, five bay by one bay rectangular vernacular (c-1870), frame dwelling covered with weatherboards and painted blue with black trim. In excellent condition, the house faces west on the corner of Girard Street and South Washington Street. A two story frame wing, covered with wood shingles, joins the main block on the north side of the rear elevation. Attached to the wing is a one story lean-to containing a greenhouse. The foundation is random rubble on the main block and stucco over stone on the wing and the front of the house is on a higher grade level than the rear.

A five bay porch extends across the facade; it has a shed roof supported by turned and chamfered posts on a balustrade. Decorative scroll brackets are arranged in the corner of each bay.

Windows containing 2/2 light, double hung sash are arranged uniformly on the facade. The first floor windows, taller than those on the second floor, have paneled shutters while the second floor has louvered shutters. Most of the other windows on the house are similar to those on the facade. There are no windows on the east elevation, facing the River.

The entry door is located in the center bay of the facade; it consists of a four panel door with a two light transom above it.

The house has a gable flank roof with a steep pitch and overhanging eaves; the is covered with asphalt shingles. Small brick interior chimneys with corbeled caps are found on either end of the ridge of the roof and the wing has a small brick chimney on the gable end.

The house is situated in a large yard with a high wooden fence on three sides.

Interior: The house has a center hall plan and a two story entrance has been achieved by the removal of a second story bathroom.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

401 South Washington Street is a good example of a vernacular dwelling (c-1870), having the evenly spaced facade fenestration and tall first floor windows characteristic of the Greek Revival. The pierced scroll saw, brackets on the porch are also typical of such (HA-810) vernacular structures. An almost identical dwelling is located diagonally across the street from it.

Land Records show that the lot was owned by the Havre Iron Works until 1869. The company had iron furnaces at the foot of Bourbon Street. (less than five blocks away) from around 1842-1868. Perhaps this property and the lot in back of contained structures related to the operation of the furnace. If this was so it would explain why no windows were included in the rear elevation of the house when it was built.

All along South Washington Street are well maintained, mid to late 19th century, frame dwellings, relating to each other in size, scale, and material. Many of them are gabled, Carpenter Gothic cottages on grassy lots that extend to the alleys behind them; built as one and sometimes two family dwellings, most of them retain that scheme of occupancy. However, because Harford Memorial Hospital is one block west, the neighborhood has become vulnerable to the intrusion of buildings related to the medical profession. Displacing the old houses, these new buildings not only represent architectural intrusions but discourage buyers who are attracted initially to the cozy, homogeneous appearance of this part of Havre de Grace but fear it is changing.
