1897

The Masonic Hall stands at the northwest corner of Washington and Fair Streets facing west. It is a three bay wide, five bay deep, two story high, gabled roof (running east-west) brick structure with square brick exterior chimneys, whose tops are decorated with corbeled brick belt courses set into each side of its north and south elevations.

The building is Italianate in style with its scrolled, coupled brackets along the overhanging eaves, its round-headed windows with elaborate arched brick hood moldings and decorative horizontal brick belt courses. Entrances are located in the north bay of the west wall and the second east bay of the south wall. Circular windows are inset into the "A" of the gabled roof decorated with lintels similar to those decorating windows and entrances.

Constructed in 1897 by the Savage Manufacturing Company to serve the social needs of the Savage Mill Village, it served as a community hall, hosting various dinners and gatherings of various kinds. For years Solomon's Lodge No. 12 rented the second floor as a Masonic Temple Room and circa 1950, after the sale of the Savage Mill to Mr. Winer, bought the property. In 1971 a general renovation of the Temple Room was undertaken in memory of the late State Senator, Dr. Frank Shipley, who served for many years as company doctor for the Savage Mill.

The Masonic Hall stands at the northwest corner of Washington and Fair Streets facing west on Fair Street. It is a three bay wide, five bay deep, two story high, gabled roof (running east-west) brick structure (with square brick exterior chimneys, whose tops are decorated with corbeled brick belt courses set into each side of its north and south walls.

The building is Italianate in style with its scrolled, coupled brackets along the overhanging eaves, its round-headed windows with elaborate arched brick hood moldings and decorative horizontal brick belt courses. Almost all the hood moldings or projecting arched brick lintels are composed of alternate rows of stretcher brick with header bricks, giving a three dimensional effect. Fenestration is proportionally scaled and vertically aligned. Originally the windows were double-hung with four-over-four lights. One such window remains on the front facade facing west on Fair Street, in the second floor south bay. Most are filled in with vented wooden slats.

Entrances are located in the north bay of the west elevation and in the second east bay of the south elevation.

The east and west elevations hold circular windows centered into the A line of the gabled roof decorated with the similar projecting lintel of the arched windows. On the west wall beneath this circular window and between the two second floor windows is a arched, almost squarish plate on which is inscribed the masonic emblem G . It is decorated with a lintel similar to the others.

On the north wall of the building rests a one story high shed roofed addition.

The interior first floor holds a dining room and kitchen, while the Temple Room for the Masons takes up the second floor. It was redecorated in 1971 as a memorial to Dr. Frank E. Shipley.

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This building is significant historically. In 1897 The Savage Manufacturing Company built the Masonic Hall for community use, to hold dinners and gatherings of various kinds. For years there was a residence apartment on the first floor along with a small dining room and a Temple Room on the second floor. The Masonic Lodge paid rent for years to the Company for the use of this room. After the sale of the company to Mr. Winer in 1950, Solomon's Lodge #12 bought the building and in 1971 redecorated the Temple Room as a memorial to former State Senator, Dr. Frank E. Shipley.

Architecturally it is noteworthy for its fine decorative brick work and as an example of late nineteenth century architecture. The simplicity of the earlier mill houses afford a sharp contrast to this Italianate style structure, with its elaborate, coupled brackets along the overhanging eaves, its round-headed windows with elaborate anchored brick hood moldings and decorative exterior brick chimneys on its north and south elevations.

In the areas of community planning and industry it indicates an attempt by the company to serve the social needs of its village as well as their residential needs. During the 1890's workers received 5¢-10¢ an hour and worked some 55 hours a week. A weaver was a trained craftsman and it behooved the company well after training such a person for some eighteen months to keep him at the plant. The training for the textile industry is a very specialized one and mills attempted to keep large families contented and serving long years after developing their skill. Homes were furnished by the mill with water from the mill race and in the late 1890's with the construction of this community hall the company attempted to meet some of the social needs of the community. Community planning was expanded from work and shelter to social intercourse and the need for social gatherings.

Located on the western boundary of the Savage Historic District, it serves as an architectural anchor to this section of the community.
