DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The origin of the building is not known at the present, but it looks as though it functioned as a store or warehouse of some kind. It is a two-story-with-loft structure. The first floor is a stone-wall basement, built into the bank. Above this is a steep "A" roof, and the entrance is a door in the three-bay basement, on the ungabled side of the building.

The hewn framing can be seen, and there are a number of wide old clapboards over this. There is a central brick chimney. A shed-roof wing is attached on the north end of the building. Like the main house, this is frame above, but rests on a full stone basement, that features a diagonal board door.

This building is most interesting in that it displays German-style building characteristics not found anywhere else in Mont. Co. Should be more closely examined.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This appears to have been a store/post office or similar building, related to the settlement and later canal activity here, at this natural trading center. The building itself was not examined closely at the time of the survey, but it appears to have a very definite German style, that makes it unique from any other Mont. Co. buildings. Fred Sellman had a store and post office here in the mid/late 19th Century (probably in this structure.)
