9. Description: This five bay by one bay, two-and-a-half story house was built into the hillside facing south. The fieldstone basement is open on the south elevation. The porch, standing on four cement posts, on the south elevation has a half-hipped roof supported by four square wooden posts. There is a lean-to addition on the north elevation. The house was originally a two room log structure. It was enlarged by a west two bay two story wing. The house is sheathed by white clapboarding. There are six-over-six double-hung windows. The gable roof is covered by black asbestos shingles.

10. Significance: Haines House/Willow Spring Farm is typical of mid-19th century medium sized farms in this section of Montgomery County and has associations with early County families. The land was first granted to Richard Snowden, Jr. in the early 18th century. His daughter Elizabeth married William Thomas, a member of the old Quaker family, and the land remained in that family for generations. After William Thomas died in 1851, Washington Haines bought 313 acres from two of William's children and probably built the house by 1855. He farmed the land, some of the finest in the County, until selling it in 1868 to Patrick Donohoo, who also farmed it, leaving it to his nephew, John O'Donnell. The land was sold from O'Donnell's estate in 1910. It passed through several owners before being purchased by the present owners in 1957.

The 2-1/2 story house is a rectangular farmhouse with a porch across the three bay main (east) facade. It has an exterior chimney on the north end. No cornice. The foundation is stone with heavy hewn wooden lintels over the cellar door and windows that are at ground level on the downhill elevation.

Other buildings on the site include a log corn crib with inverted "V" shaped notches on the lower edge. The rafters are notched to fit over the ^-shaped cut on the upper side of the log. The log sills rest on a stone foundation.

A stone spring house sits on the east side of the house.

According to the owners, the main house once had a center chimney.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This five bay by one bay, two and a half story house is built into the side of a hill facing south.

Built on fieldstone foundations of chinked logs sheathed by white clapboards, the house was originally a three bay, two room structure. About 1953 a two bay two story wing was added to the west elevation. The south (front) porch stands above the basement at the first level on four concrete posts. The half-hipped porch roof is supported by four square wooden posts. The porch is enclosed by a balustraded railing and is decorated by four flower boxes. Six wooden steps lead from the east side to the porch. The south (front) door is wooden paneled; the south elevation basement door is also wooden paneled. On the north elevation a one story lean-to has been enclosed at the east end and is screened-in on the west end. On the north elevation there is a pair of multi-paned glass doors.

The house has six-over-six double-hung windows flanked by blue board and batten shutters. There are two gabled inset six-over-six double-hung dormer windows on the south and north elevations of the west addition.

The house has an east and west gable roof covered by black asbestos shingles. There are two interior chimneys and one exterior end chimney at the west gable end.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Willow Spring Farm is an example of a 19th century medium-sized farm, typical of this section of Montgomery County.

The farm is part of three original tracts of land; "Snowden's 2nd Addition to his Manor", "Snowden's 3rd Addition to his Manor", both granted to Richard Snowden, Jr., the Anne Arundel County ironmaster, in the early 18th century, and "Addition to Charley Forest" granted to Major John Bradford in 1720.¹ Snowden soon acquired Bradford's lands. Snowden's daughter Elizabeth married into the Thomas family, one of the oldest Quaker families in the County, and the land remained in that family for generations.²

When William Thomas died in 1851, he divided his vast estate among his children. In 1853 Washington Haines bought 250 acres from William's daughter Martha Harvey,³ and two years later he bought 63½ acres more from Edward Thomas, William's son.⁴ It is believed that he built a house about this time and settled in to farm the land, land which had the reputation as being some of the finest in the County.

Washington Haines sold the farm in 1868 to Patrick Donohoo. Donohoo eventually left the land to his nephew John O'Donnell,⁵ who farmed it for several years. O'Donnell later became insane, and at his death the court took over the property and auctioned it off to pay off O'Donnell's creditors. A poster dated 6/11/1910 described the estate to be sold:

"65½ acres...improved by a FARM HOUSE in good condition, stable, and other necessary outbuildings...This land is of good quality, easily improved, and produced good crops...offers an unusual opportunity to one desiring a productive small farm."⁶

The farm was not sold at the auction and was unused until October of that year when James Johnson purchased it for $22/acre.⁷ Three years later he resold for nearly $37/acre.⁸ The farm passed through many hands until the present owners bought it in 1957.
