Gibbs-Coates House

Boyds

Private

c.1880's

c.1900

This two story frame house was added to the facade of a small log house in the early 1900's. Later the log house was demolished. This house was the home of a Black landowner, William Gibbs, who helped to build the Washington monument in the District of Columbia.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This two story frame house stands on the north side of Hoyles Mill Road at its junction with White Grounds Road. Today the house consists of a two story front block with a one story shed kitchen attached to the rear length. In earlier years, according to Mrs. Edna Duffin Johnson and present occupant Mrs. Mae Coates, this house originally consisted of a log house with either one or two rooms down and one or two rooms up. It was the home of William Gibbs. Probably in the early 1900s, Gibbs added this front block to the log cabin and eventually tore the log cabin down, replacing it with the frame shed kitchen now in place.

The house is covered with composition siding of a tan brick motif, and the corners are accented with trim boards. The facade of the house is sheathed by a shed porch supported by square posts. The roof is covered with galvanized tin, and the eaves boxed with plain boards. The facade consists of three bays with a door centrally located with a window on either side. The design of the front block closely resembles the design of the Addison and Celia Duffin house in the White Grounds community which has also been surveyed as well as the design of many other homes of rural landowners in the County of moderate means. The windows are trimmed with plain boards and contain double hung sashes with six over six lights. Through the middle of the roof ascends a brick stove flue.

In plan the house consists of two rooms down and two rooms up. A boxed stairway along the back length of the house leads to the upstairs.

None of the outbuildings which surrounded this house remain.

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

According to deed TD2/184, Mary H. Delauder and Edgar C. Delauder sold this tract of three acres and two roods to William Gibbs and his wife Betty Gibbs in 1897. This was a part of the much larger tract of 61 1/4 acres, which Mary Delauder purchased from Grace B. Leapley and Frank P. Leapley in 1888. (Deed JA 9/195) This property is part of the tract of "Second Resurvey" or "Wolf's Cow". According to Mrs. Johnson, she does not recall that William Gibbs built the log house, but does remember him adding the frame addition. The frame addition therefore was built in the early 1900s, while the log house is of unknown construction since it no longer stands.

According to community tradition, William Gibbs, known as "Grandpa Gibbs", said that he had helped to build the Washington monument in the District of Columbia. This is well possible since Gibbs would have been a youth at the time of completion of the monument in the 1880s. At this time we are trying to locate a photograph of "Grandpa Gibbs" -- who is known as one of the genuine old timers of the community and beloved by all -- but so far have had no luck. Grandpa Gibbs was buried in the cemetery behind St. Mark's Church and his gravestone was photographed as part of the survey. See the slides of the St. Mark's Church Cemetery.

The 1900 U.S. census for Montgomery County lists William and Bettie M. Gibbs in the 11th Election District. William Gibbs was born in 1855 in Maryland, was employed as a "farm laborer", could read but could not write, and owned his home.

His wife Bettie was born in 1862 and could read and write. They had been married for nineteen years and had two children, who were not living with them in 1900.
