Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Wells house is a small 1½ story dwelling situated very close to the road. It is made of logs, with a frame addition at the rear. This house can be seen on the photograph taken in the late 1800s - next to the Griffith store - and has changed only very little since that time. The same roof covers the small front "porch" and the two front doors. The photo shows two small interior chimneys, but the one on the east side was unused in recent years and the above-roof part was removed. The house has a gable roof covered with tin, and the entire house is covered with a light green masonite sheathing.

The first floor of this log house contains a living room and bedroom, each with a front door, and has two bedrooms upstairs. A kitchen and a den are in the frame addition in the rear, with an enclosed porch which is across the width of the house at the back. The log construction of the main part of the house is easily seen in the walls of an upstairs bedroom. The logs are close together with not much chinking required between. The cellar is small with dirt floor and has walls of varying sizes of rocks, some large blocks and some shale, with mortar between only some of them. The beams here are of large logs with the bark still remaining.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

This house, made of logs, appears on the 1865 map as the residence of John Wells, and on the 1879 map as the property of Ann Wells. The land records show that Ann Wells purchased the property, 47½ sq. perches, from Louisa Beall in May of 1862 for $325.¹ Louisa Beall had inherited "houses and lots in Darnestown" from her mother, Elizabeth Darne. However, Ann was living in the community before 1858, as she appears on the roll of the Darnestown Presbyterian Church that year. Although there was no mention of appurtenances in the deed, the possibility exists that the house could have been one of those "houses" that Louisa inherited. After John Wells' death in 1877, Ann must have found ends hard to meet as she received money from the Widows and Orphans Fund of the church for a number of years. When she died about 1885, her heirs sold the property.² The house then went through a succession of owners until 1924, when it was purchased by Fenton Carter,³ who was already living there. The Carter family has lived there ever since.
