9. Description: This one bay by three bay, one and a half story frame church faces south. It has white asbestos shingles. There is a gabled pairlion on the south elevation. Above the pairlion, clustered on the south gable end is a plaque with three crosses. The pavilion has one-over-one double-hung windows. The main body of the church has six-over-six double-hung. The gable roof has asbestos shingles. There is a small wooden belfrey at the southend of the gable roof. It is enclosed and has a hopped roof.

10. Significance: This simple, white-clapboarded church is significant as a country church building, and as a reminder of the late 19th c. rural community of Travilah.

Travilah Baptist Church, incorporated in March 1894, began with 13 members as a daughter church to the Mount Zion Baptist Church (Wildwood Baptist Church) of Rockville. In 1894, one-fifth acre was purchased from a tract called "The Addition to James" and the original one-room church was built that year. It served the isolated rural community surrounding the intersection of Glen and Travilah Road, and continues to serve the community, now surrounded by the subdivisions of Potomac. Today the congregation numbers about 310 members.

In 1965, the building was converted into small classrooms and an assembly room, and a new brick one-story church was built on land behind the old church. In 1976 an educational wing was added to the newer structure.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Travilah Baptist Church is a reminder of the small rural community which evolved in the late 19th century at the intersection of Glen and Travilah Roads.

Travilah Baptist Church, incorporated in March of 1894,¹ began with 13 members as a daughter-church to the Mount Zion Baptist Church (Wildwood Baptist Church) of Rockville.² It served the isolated rural community surrounding the junction of Glen and Travilah Roads whose old name Travilah has in recent years been largely supplanted by the name "Potomac" which properly belongs to the crossroads area five miles to the southeast.

Land for the church was purchased in March 1894 from George and Elizabeth Rice. It is described in the deed as being 1/5th of an acre, "being part of a tract of land called 'The Addition to James'".³

The small white-clapboard church was built in 1894. Originally the interior was just one room. However, in 1965 the building ceased being used as a church sanctuary and it was divided with temporary walls into small classrooms and an assembly room. In the same year more land was bought and a new one-story brick sanctuary was built behind the old one. In 1976 an educational wing was added to the newer structure.⁴

The Travilah Baptist Church continues to serve its community and currently has about 310 members.⁵
