Log Cabin
1912 Norbeck Road
Sandy Spring

c. 1860

This was a small, one-room cabin, with a central door in the east (main) facade. The hewn-log walls were exposed in 1974 when the building was surveyed, and the old stone and mortar chinking was intact. A chimney sat on the south end wall, and the house was covered with vines.

This was probably a Negro family cabin during the early days of the predominantly black Norbeck community.

The building was demolished prior to September 3, 1982.
