DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Kemp house is located on the east side of Alderton Road, south of its intersection with Atwood Road. It is surrounded by dense trees and shrubbery which almost hide it from view.

The house is 2½ stories high, 3 bays wide by 1 bay deep, and aligned parallel to Alderton Road. It is gable roofed with a center cross gable containing a 6/6 window. The house is sheathed with white shingles and has a metal roof. The principal (north) facade has 3 windows across its second floor, and on the ground floor, there is a central doorway flanked by a window on each side. All windows are 6/6. A one story porch supported by turned posts extends along this facade.

The house appears on an 1873 Hopkins atlas as that of Jacob Kemp, who also owned another house and a store located nearby on Layhill Road (Maryland Route 182). On the 1894 Hopkins atlas, it is shown as belonging to Mrs. A. Kemp. It is now occupied by members of the Beall family, another old local family.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The house is significant as a good, well-preserved example of a typical 19th century Maryland house form, and it still retains much of its historical integrity. It is located in an area which is undergoing much suburban and commercial development, and is one of the few remaining structures of its age and type in the area.
