DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is a huge barn that presently operates as a riding stables. It is built in the Colonial Revival style-popular during the 1920's "estate era". However, it is a unique example of such a building. The massive, sharply-pitched A-roof completely dominates the structure. It is covered in metal, and features several small dormers. The main (north) facade has seven bays, with a central, drive-thru doorway, and double windows in the other bays. The low side walls are of rubble-stone, and are topped with a short frame wall that encases the windows. The barn contains 48 indoor and 9 outdoor stalls. A tack room, office, and apartments are located in a frame building, of similar style, attached to the west end of the building.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Apparently, this was a show-place stables for the Callahan estate-located here before the Park & Planning Comm. began to extend Rock Creek Park into Maryland. Primary interest is related to local 20th Century estate architecture.
