This property has not been previously surveyed. The headquarters for Cherry Hill [mobile home] Park is a typical 2-story, frame front-gable and wing dwelling that is banked on the rear elevation exposing a stone and concrete-block foundation. A full, wrapping 1-story front porch is supported on plain wood posts, and has been partially enclosed. There is an exterior brick chimney on the gable end. Fenestration, generally 1/1 double-hung sash, is modern. One major addition to the rear contains bathrooms.

The interior has been stripped of all character defining- features and currently boasts a dropped acoustical ceiling and wall-to-wall carpeting.

A single gable-roofed, concrete-block outbuilding is located behind the structure, as is a very large satellite dish.

The main structure was a residence until 1989, when it was converted into the offices of Cherry Hill Park--a mobile-home and trailer facility of more than 47 acres. It currently sits adjacent to a camp-store complex and a large parking area, near the trailer parking area. In 1918, the area in which this structure is located was a minor crossroads, including two dwellings and the Paint Branch

School House, according to the "Washington, D.C., and Suburbs" atlas (G. Wm. Baist, Philadelphia: 1918). This dwelling may be one of the two aforementioned dwellings.

The property is not eligible under Criterion A, as research conducted indicates no association with any historic events or trends significant in the development of national, state, or local history. Historic research indicates that the property has no association with persons who have made specific contributions to history, and therefore it does not meet Criterion B. It is not eligible under Criterion C, as it is an undistinguished vernacular dwelling whose integrity is poor due to the modifications to it and its much-altered surroundings. Investigations have not been conducted to determine whether the property has the potential to yield information important in history or pre-history, therefore National Register Criterion D cannot be assessed at this time.
