

PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY
HISTORIC SITE SUMMARY SHEET

Survey #: P.G. #74A-5 Building Date: ca. 1885

Building Name: Townshend House

Location: 12706 Woodmore Road, Mitchellville, Maryland

Private/Residence/Occupied/Excellent/Inaccessible

Description

The Townshend House is a two-story frame hip-roofed house set back circa 1,500 feet north of Woodmore Road at the end of a long lane lined with evergreens. It is nearly square, three bays by two bays, with overhanging eaves typical of the Italianate style. In the three-bay principal south facade, there is a handsome entrance in the central bay. The door surround features pilasters in the Ionic style; it has sidelights and an elliptical fanlight with tracery. There are two interior chimneys in the south plane of the roof located on each side of the central stairhall. Across the south front of the building is a one-story porch supported by plain posts with jig-sawn brackets. The siding of the house is plain horizontal board, painted white. The windows are 2/2 with louvered shutters painted dark green. The roof is of metal painted red, and the foundations are of brick. To the east of the building is a modern addition: a small square hip-roofed one-story wing, connected to the main house by a breezeway. To the northeast is a small one-story storage building, and a few hundred feet farther north is a small barn.

Significance

The Townshend House is a handsome Victorian house with Italianate details, built in the early 1880's for Alice and Grafton Townshend. It remained in the Townshend family for nearly 100 years. Alice Amelia Walker grew up in the late eighteenth century house at Pleasant Prospect which her father, Jonathan T. Walker, had acquired after the Civil War. In 1880 she married Grafton Townshend, a planter from the area south of Tee Bee known as Townshend after his family. For the first several years they lived in the Townshend area, while her father had a house built for them on the western section of Pleasant Prospect. In 1885 after the house was completed, Jonathan and Jane Walker deeded to their daughter, Alice Amelia Townshend, and her children the 163 acres of Pleasant Prospect upon which the house stood; the large and handsome house was home to Alice Townshend and later to her son Harry. When Harry Townshend died in 1968, he willed the house and 3 acres to his wife, Ruth. She sold it in 1977 to the family of Paul Zanecki, who added the breezeway and east addition.

To the east of the building is a small square hip-roofed one-story addition, connected to the main house by a breezeway. To the northeast is a small one-story storage building, and a few hundred feet further north is a small barn. This small farm stood for nearly a century surrounded by open farmland; in recent years, however, the new development of the Court-side Villas at Woodmore has grown up immediately west of the Townshend farm.
