

PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY
HISTORIC SITE SUMMARY SHEET

Survey #: P.G. #80-12 Building Date: 1902

Building Name: Silesia Schoolhouse (#4, District #5)

Location: 11520 Fort Washington Road, Fort Washington, MD.

Private/Unoccupied/Fair/Inaccessible

Description

Silesia Schoolhouse is a one-story frame front-gabled schoolhouse, typical of the one-room schoolhouses of the turn of this century. It is three bays by three bays, with entrance into the center bay of the west gable front. The gable front is sheltered by a hip-roof porch with chamfered posts and plain railing. The original German siding of the building is presently covered with white asbestos shingle. Windows are 6/6 double hung sash; the gable roof is covered with green asphalt shingle. There are two interior brick chimneys, one nearly centered at the ridge, and the other at the east gable end. The building rests on a low brick foundation; there is no basement. Silesia Schoolhouse was converted into a residence in the 1930's. The building was extended to the east and the rear entrance and porch, and easterly stove chimney were added. The single classroom space was divided by partitions into small living spaces. All of the interior material dates from the 1930's. Silesia Schoolhouse stands on the grounds of Fort Washington Baptist Church, on a level lot framed by tall oak trees.

Significance

Silesia Schoolhouse is a good example a one-room schoolhouse of the turn of this century. Although much altered on the interior, it retains much of its original exterior appearance. The Silesia Schoolhouse was constructed in 1902 on a one-acre lot sold to the Board of County School Commissioners by James and Mary Edelen. It was used as a school for only one quarter century; when the Oxon Hill consolidated school was built in 1925, the schools in the South Potomac/Piscataway area were closed and their students transported to the new school. During the 1930's, the school building was converted into a private residence and the easterly extension was built. In 1959, the schoolhouse and part of the original one-acre lot were sold to the Baptist Church, which used the building as its mission chapel from that time until 1965. Silesia Schoolhouse is a good example of the turn-of-the-century one-room schoolhouses of Prince George's County. Although it is in deteriorating condition, it has potential for adaptive reuse.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

Silesia Schoolhouse is a one-story frame front-gabled schoolhouse, typical of the one-room schoolhouses of the turn of this century. It stands on a level lot framed by several tall oak trees, accessible by an unpaved drive which circles the building to the south and the east.

The building is three bays by three bays, 22 by 37-1/2 feet. Entrance is into the center bay of the west gable front. The doorway, presently boarded up, has an applied wood pedimented surround, painted dark gray. The gable front is sheltered by a hip-roof porch with chamfered posts and plain (broken) railing. The wood floor of the porch rests on brick piers, and is accessible by two wooden steps.

The original German siding of the building is presently covered with white asbestos shingle. Windows are 6/6 double hung sash, and are presently boarded up with plywood. Only the two windows which flank the west door have shutters; they are louvered and painted dark gray. The gable roof is covered with green asphalt shingle. The plain boxed cornice has a slight overhang. There are two interior brick chimneys, one nearly centered at the ridge, and the other at the east gable end. The building rests on a low brick foundation; there is no basement.

A small hip roof entry porch shelters the rear entrance in the first bay of the east gable end. The rear entrance and porch were built in the 1930's when the school was converted into a dwelling; the rear door is the only opening in the east gable end. The porch has chamfered posts, wood floor and plain (broken) railing; it rests on wood posts and is accessible by a flight of wooden steps. The hip roof of the porch is covered with red asphalt shingle.

Silesia Schoolhouse was converted into a residence in the 1930's. The building was extended about 11 feet in length to the east; the rear entrance and porch, and easterly stove chimney were added. The single classroom space was divided by partitions into one large room, two small rooms, and a small closet/bathroom space; the easterly enlargement added a kitchen and another small bedroom (see floor plan.) All of the interior material dates from the 1930's with the possible exception of the ogee molding of the west door surround. Other surrounds have multi-band moldings, the baseboards are plain and high, and doors have five panels. The southeasterly space is fitted with modern kitchen equipment.

Silesia Schoolhouse stands on the north side of Warburton Oaks Drive and fronts on Fort Washington Road. There is a concrete-capped well about 12 feet north of the building. The schoolhouse stands on the 6.58 acre lot of the Fort Washington Baptist Church. The modern (1960's) church fronts on Fort Washington Road; the low Sunday School building is attached to the east (rear) of the church. The church and Sunday school buildings stand at the northerly boundary of the lot.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

Silesia Schoolhouse is a good example of the simple one-room schoolhouse of the turn of the twentieth century. Although much altered on the interior, it retains much of its original exterior appearance.

The Silesia Schoolhouse was constructed in 1902 on a one-acre lot sold to the Board of County School Commissioners by James and Mary Edelen.¹ It was used as a school for only approximately one quarter century. When the Oxon Hill consolidated school was built in 1925, the one-room schools in the South Potomac/Piscataway area were closed and their students transported to the new school on Livingston Road. The one-acre lot and the Silesia Schoolhouse reverted at this time to the Edelen family.²

During the 1930's, the school building was converted into a private residence; it was at this time that the easterly extension was built, adding the kitchen with its stove chimney, and the rear entrance and porch.

In 1959, the schoolhouse and part of the original one-acre lot were sold to Congress Heights Baptist Church, which used the building as its mission chapel from that time until 1965. The new church on the adjoining lot was constructed at this time, and came to be known as Fort Washington Baptist Church.³ Since the mid-1960's the old school building has been used by the church Boy Scout troop, and for occasional church-related meetings, but has deteriorated considerably. It has recently been boarded up for purposes of safety.

Silesia Schoolhouse is one of only a few turn-of-the-century one-room schoolhouses surviving in Prince George's County. Similar, although somewhat earlier, examples of the type are: The Friendly School #5 in District #5 (#80-21) which was built in the 1890's and converted into a residence in the 1920's; and Thrift Schoolhouse #2 in District #9 (#81B-3) which was built in 1884 and converted into a residence after 1911.⁴ The Queen Anne Schoolhouse #1 in District #7 (#74B-8) was built in 1902 and is nearly identical to Silesia Schoolhouse except for its siting on a prominent hill and its consequent high foundation and partial cellar space. Queen Anne Schoolhouse was converted to a dwelling after 1920; a front deck, new siding and rear shed-roof addition have changed its appearance to such an extent that it is no longer representative of turn-of-the-century one-room schoolhouses.⁵

Possibly the best surviving example of this type of building is the St. Mary's Beneficial Society Hall in Upper Marlboro (#79-25). This front-gabled one-room meeting house was built in 1892 as a Benevolent Society hall for the black Catholic community of Upper Marlboro. It is currently being restored for adaptive reuse.⁶

Silesia Schoolhouse is a good example of the turn-of-the-century one-room schoolhouses of Prince George's County. Although it is in deteriorating condition, it has great potential for adaptive reuse.
