

PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY
HISTORIC SITE SUMMARY SHEET

Survey #: P.G. #80-21 Building Date: 1890s

Building Name: Friendly School

Location: 10115 Old Fort Road, Friendly, Maryland

Private/Residence/Occupied/Excellent/Inaccessible

Description:

The Friendly school building is a small one-and-one-half-story frame gable-roofed structure, converted from a one-room schoolhouse into a modern residence. The entrance is through the central bay of the three-bay north gable end, which is covered by a modern porch. Above the porch in the gable end is a diamond-shaped window. The sides of the building are four bays wide, and the siding is covered with white abestos shingle. There are two chimneys at the ridge. In recent years, the building was lifted and placed on a cinder-block foundation. The interior has been completely altered, leaving scarcely any of the original fabric. Ten-by-ten inch floor beams, believed to be original, remain in place.

Significance:

A schoolhouse has stood at this location since before the Civil War. The one-acre lot almost certainly came out of the considerable landholdings of the Thorne family, members of which served as school trustees throughout the school's existence. Members of the Taylor family, which also provided school trustees, note that William F. Taylor helped with a major rebuilding of the school in the 1890s. This is confirmed by school Commission reports which indicate that all of the County's original school buildings were rebuilt during this period. The school at this location was officially designated as School #5 in District #5 (Piscataway); by the 1890s it came to be known as Friendly School.

In 1925 the Oxon Hill Consolidated School opened, and took in students who had formerly attended the Oxon Hill, Fort Foote, Friendly, Silesia and Fort Washington schools; in January 1926, Friendly School was sold to E. J. Thorne, and subsequently converted into a residence. Although it has been considerably altered, its exterior retains much of its structural integrity. It is one of only two surviving schools in Prince George's County constructed in the 1890's.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Friendly school building is a small, one- and-one-half-story frame gable-roofed structure, converted from a one-room schoolhouse into a modern residence. The entrance is through the central bay of the three-bay north gable end, which is covered by a modern porch. Above the porch in the gable end is a diamond-shaped window.

The sides of the building are four bays wide, and the siding is covered with white asbestos shingle. The cornice is returned at the gable ends. There are two chimneys at the ridge.

In recent years, the building was lifted and placed on a cinder-block foundation. The interior of the building has been completely altered, leaving none of the original fabric. The ca. 10" by 10" floor beams do remain, however, and are believed to be original.

It is probable that the south portion of the schoolhouse was added in one of the several construction phases.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

A schoolhouse has stood at this location since before the Civil War. Because the first schoolhouse was constructed before the Board of County School Commissioners was officially established, however, the original deed for the school lot has not been discovered. This one-acre school lot almost certainly came out of the considerable land-holdings of the Thorne family, and it was to Edgar J. Thorne that the house and lot were sold in 1926, when the school was closed. Members of the Thorne family served as school trustees throughout the school's existence. Another family closely associated with the school is the Taylor family, which also provided trustees for the school throughout its history.¹ Present-day members of this family, although they believe the building to be original, note that William F. Taylor (who served as trustee in the 1920's) helped with a major rebuilding of the school in the 1890's. This is probably the case, since school commission reports indicate that all of the County's original school buildings were rebuilt during this period.²

After the establishment of the Board of County School Commissioners in 1865, the school at this location was officially designated as School #5 in District #5 (Piscataway). By the 1890's, it came to be known as the Friendly School. It served seven grade levels, each class sitting on an individual bench. The building was warmed by a coal stove. Although the schoolhouse was expanded several times, it always remained a one-room structure.³

As early as 1922, plans were begun to establish a larger school to serve the students then attending the Oxon Hill, Fort Foote, Friendly, Silesia and Fort Washington schools. The Oxon Hill Consolidated School opened in 1925, and in January 1926, the Friendly school and lot were sold to E. J. Thorne for $331.⁴ Since that time it has (like so many other vacated County school buildings) been converted into a residence. Although it has been considerably altered, it does reflect a long history of education in Prince George's County.
