DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is a most-unusual house, that appears to have been rebuilt using materials from an older building. It is an I-shaped, one-story frame building, with identical end-wings joined by a hyphen wing. The style appears to be a Victorian revival of the early Southern Maryland, Colonial type. Each section has a steeply-pitched A-roof and sits on a brick foundation. The entrance porch is on the east facade of the hyphen, while the west facade is recessed between the two end-wings and features a brick fireplace chimney with a tall, thin stack. Almost all of the framing is sawn, as is the lath. There are stove-chimneys in each end-wing, and the siding is German siding. The west gable facades of the end wings are blank, save for louvered attic vents. The gable-ends here are covered with square shingles.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This is a most-unusual house, that may be earlier than it first appears, as the Burroughs family was well-to-do, and built the sophisticated "Waverly" nearby at an early date. They are shown living here on Hopkins' 1878 Atlas. The property is still in this family.
