This property, known today as Oxford House, is an isolated farmhouse located south of MD Route 328 (Matthewstown Road). The house is accessed by a long unsurfaced drive leading from Matthewstown Road.

The house is a 2.5-story frame vernacular T-plan building constructed on a continuous brick foundation. The main block is a side gabled building that faces east. There is a flat roof three-bay bracketed porch supported by turned wood posts. The main entry is a four-panel door with a four-light transom and three-light sidelights. There is a side (east)hip roof porch and an enclosed shed roof porch attached to the west side of the rear ell. There are three interior brick chimneys. The house has 2/2 wood DHS windows and is clad by metal siding. The roof is clad by composition shingles.

This property appears to have been developed by the time the Talbot County map of 1858 was published. Owned in 1858 by a "Mrs. [Hannah] Dudley," widow of William Dudley. Although a house is pictured in the 1858 map, it may have been a precursor to the existing building. In 1868, the property was sold to P.P. Matthews, who in turn sold it to Jonathan George. George is shown as the property owner in the 1877 Talbot County map. This property does not appear to be eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places.
