Pinckett House
St. Michaels
Private

c. 1852

The earliest deed that defines this Mill Street lot (formerly called Willow Street) dates to November 14, 1851, when James Watkins purchased a lease to the property from Jeremiah and Rebecca Ann Harrison. Only seventeen days later the Watkinses transferred the lease to Samuel T. Harrison, who purchased fee title interest in the lot in 1865. It appears Samuel T. Harrison erected the house, perhaps as early as 1852, and then sold the house along with the household furnishings to a Louisa J. Harrison, a wife a perhaps a daughter, in 1867. During much of the twentieth century the property has been owned by the Pinckett family. Commodore Littleton and Nora Virtenia Pinckett purchased the house in 1920.

The Pinckett house is a two-part dwelling probably built for a middle income working class laborer or perhaps, a skilled artisan. The story-and-a-half structure has been thought by the owners to be a horizontal log house erected during the seventeenth century. Exterior architectural features, however, suggest the house was assembled around 1850. Only an interior investigation would reveal its true wall construction, but in most cases where owners have claimed log construction there arguement is based on a few floor timbers that are partially bark covered. Although log houses are known to have been built in St. Michaels during the eighteenth century no surviving examples have been confirmed.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Pinckett house stands at 107 Mill Street in the northern residential district of St. Michaels, Talbot County, Maryland. The story-and-a-half, two-part frame house faces south with the main gable roof oriented on an east/west axis.

Probably built during the middle years of the nineteenth century, the story-and-a-half frame dwelling rests on a low brick foundation, and it is sheathed with a layer of wood shingles. The medium pitched gable roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Attached to the back of the house is a shed roofed addition.

The south (main) elevation is an asymmetrical four-bay facade with the entrance in the shorter of the two sections. A partially glazed front door is flanked by a single-pane sash window sheltered by a metal awning. The two bays to the slightly taller section are filled with single-pane sash windows along covered by metal awnings. Centered on the two roof slopes are gabled dormers filled with six-over-six sash windows. A narrow brick stove chimney rises between the two sections.

The west gable end is defined by a two latter paired window openings on the first floor and a small window opening on the second floor. Each opening is sheltered by a metal awning. The gable end is flush.

The east end, on the other hand, is a largely plain surface aside from two small windows to the rear on either side of an exterior brick stove flue.

Attached to the back of the house are shed roofed additions.

The lot is part of the original tract called "Stopper" patented by Christopher Stamper in 1668. In 1741, Joseph Harrison had the land declared escheated and resurveyed, calling it "Joseph's Lot".

Joseph died in 1784. The land descended to his son Thomas who was born in 1734 and died in 1801. Thomas had 9 children, of whom daughter Mary married her 3rd cousin, Joseph Harrison. Joseph died in 1815 and on Mary's death in 1822, the property went to her oldest son, Jeremiah.
