James Skinner House
Unionville
Private

c. 1918

The James Skinner house, along with the Ockimey house, is identified by long-time Unionville residents as one of the oldest houses to remain standing in the village. Built of slightly larger dimensions than the Ockimey house, the James Skinner house includes a side entrance. Both houses, however, are in poor repair. Nevertheless the James Skinner house is reflective of the modest dwellings with few decorative touches that characterize rural black villages in Talbot County.

The titlework for this property indicates that James Skinner and his wife, Fannie, purchased this lot of ground from James M. and Lida M. Cowgill, the turn of the century owners of adjacent Lombardy plantation, in November 1918. The Skinners paid James Cowgill $120 for the property, which would suggest that the land contained some sort of improvement. The property remained in Skinner family hands until 1953 when Fannie Skinner, then a widow, sold the house and lot to Violetta Edwards. In more recent years the house has been held by the DeShields family.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The James Skinner house is located on the west side of Unionville Road (MD 370) in the center of the small village of Unionville, Talbot County, Maryland. The two-story, three-bay frame house faces east with the gable roof oriented on a north/south axis.

Built around 1918, this two-story side hall/parlor house sits very low to the ground; in fact, there is no discernable foundation. The dwelling is sheathed with wood shingles, and it is covered by a medium pitched asphalt shingle roof. Attached to the back of the main block is a two-story, two-bay rear wing.

The east (main) elevation is an asymmetrical facade with a side entrance and two unevenly spaced six-over-one sash windows to the south. The front door is partially glazed. Lighting the second floor are two six-over-one sash windows. The eaves to the roof are slightly extended and sloped.

The south gable end is marked by single-pane sash window on the first floor and a six-over-one sash window that lights the second floor. The north gable end, on the other hand, is a blind wall.

The west (rear) elevation of the main house is fully covered by the two-story, two-bay rear wing lighted on each floor by single-pane sash windows.

The interior was not seen.
