DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

New Design Farm is located at the headwaters of Leeds Creek on Miles River Neck. The house is a small two part dwelling constructed in the first half of the 19th century. It is composed of two sections, a three bay long one and one-half story brick house and a two bay one and one-half story frame wing.

The south facade of the building has the typical arrangement, with center door flanked by two windows, with two dormers above, however, the north facade has two doors and two windows, like the facades of Geneza and Makepeace. Since all sides are laid in common bond it is difficult to determine which is the principal facade. The west gable has a brick chimney built onto the side of the house and is a later addition. About two feet above ground is a row of glazed headers. In the gable itself is a central window with two smaller windows now bricked in. Across the north facade is a leanto screened porch.

The wing has an assymetrical roof and a two story tower on its south facade, creating a very interesting facade.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Architecturally, New Design Farm is of interest as a late vernacular building exhibiting the same "hall and parlor" plan so popular for 200 years before. The peculiarities of the building consist of the two door facade and the line of glazed brick, akin to the glazed work on the wing of Crooked Intention.
