Home Federal Savings and Loan

1965

Association Building

120-130 West Washington Street

Hagerstown

Washington County, Maryland

Erected in 1965, the Home Federal Building is a large, contemporary commercial structure which combines an existing building with new construction. Its sleek lines and expanses of blank wall contrast sharply with the neighboring nineteenth and early twentieth century Neoclassical buildings. Along with the First Federal Building to the east, this structure attests to the importance of Hagerstown in the economic life of Washington County.

The Home Federal Building stands at 120-130 West Washington Street in Hagerstown, Washington County, and is located on the north side of the street in the eastern quarter of the block formed by Summit Avenue and Prospect Street, the second block west of public Square.

The building is a 1965, three story, masonry and metal commercial structure which includes an earlier building (believed to date from the nineteenth century). Free-standing, the building sits in row with other structures and has only narrow passages along the sides. The facade or south elevation is covered with panels of small stones and has a recessed first story with large display windows. The upper levels have three strips of windows, one on each floor.
