Description

This is a one-and-a-half story frame Bungalow with a gable-shed roof with two gable dormers covered with asphalt shingles. It is a three bay structure with six over one windows. The exterior is covered with wood shingles and narrow guage siding. Across the front is a porch with original balustrades and posts. The house is sitting on a concrete poured foundation and there is a one stall garage on the property. It represents Hancock's major construction boom of the early 20th century.
