DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Reiff's Mennonite Church is located on the south side of Reiff's Church Road between Cearfoss and Maugansville in Washington County, Maryland. It is situated on an area of fairly level ground and faces north.

The church is a large brick structure, three bays wide at the gable ends and nine bays in length. It is one and a half stories high. Resting on concrete sheathed foundations, it employs all stretcher brickwork. A datestone set in the northeast corner of the building indicates that the church was built in 1840, rebuilt in 1891 and again rebuilt in 1928.

Windows appear to be spaced evenly in the walls. All openings are topped with segmental arches. All windows have shutters with their upper portions louvered and the lower sections paneled. The main entrance is centered in the north end wall. The double doors are topped with a high transom, almost half the height of the door.

A small brick chimney is located inside the north end wall. A second chimney extends from the interior of the building near its south end. The roof is sheathed with slates.

The cemetery is located southeast of the church. The church and cemetery contain less than five acres.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Reiff's Mennonite Church, known earlier as Witmer's Meeting House was built in 1840. The story and a half brick structure was, however, rebuilt twice, in 1891 and again in 1928. A Mennonite Church, the building serves a large religious group who are particularly numerous in north central Washington County. Almost without exception Mennonite families, members of a plain religious sect founded in Germany, migrated from Pennsylvania.

According to T.J.C. Williams' History of Washington County, the original Reiff's Church, built in 1840 was a stone structure "in which the congregation worshipped until its walls gave way in 1862 or 1863."¹

The land on which the church stands was conveyed to the Trustees of the Society and Congregation of Menonist's by John and Susanna Witmer in 1840.
