Description:

Located on the south side of East Maple Street is this multi-part stone, log and frame structure. The west side of the house consists of a two story, three bay log unit covered with vinyl siding. Attached to the west end of this portion of the house is a one story, two bay stone section with a framed second story added. Window frames in the stone section are wide and massive but there is no stone jack or segmental arch over the windows, which suggests early 19th century construction. The front entrance is located in the east bay of the log section, giving the entire facade a central entrance. This is among the earlier houses on Maple Street. In general, Funkstown's oldest buildings are concentrated along Baltimore Street.

According to the 1877 Atlas map for Funkstown, this property was owned and occupied by I. Hannah.
