Description:

Probably built about 1870 is this two story, five bay brick house. It has a symmetrically arranged facade with common bond brick work at all elevations. Windows are large with two over two pane sash. The main entrance is located in the center bay and includes a broad transom and sidelights around the door. Across-the-front porch is supported by square posts. Projecting from the roof is a hip roofed dormer which probably dates from the early 20th century. The cornice is defined by a series of brackets, influenced of the Italianate style.

The 1877 Atlas map of Funkstown shows this to be the home of Mrs. McCoy.

It is a prominent house located along the National Pike which influenced the architectural development of Funkstown. The design of the house reflects a blend of Greek Revival and Italianate influence.
