Description:

Five bays wide and constructed of brick, this two story house has common bond brick work at all elevations. It appears to date from the mid 19th century but could be brick casing over an earlier log house. Windows have wide wood lintels with single pane sash. Entrances are located in the second and fourth bays. The west entrance has an arched hood supported by brackets. The east entrance has a fancy cast iron porch reflecting Italianate influence. The roofing material is standing seam sheet metal. The eaves are trimmed with a prominent bracketed cornice band.

According to the 1877 Atlas map for Funkstown, this property was occupied by O.H. Snyder. Oliver H. Snyder manufactured boots and shoes and did repair work at his shop on Baltimore Street.
