Description:

Probably dating from the 1870s or 1880s, this frame house follows the basic five bay, central entrance plan with updates reflecting the High Victorian Gothic style. Distinguishing features include a one story, semi-hexagonal projecting bay at the west side of the front elevation and a central cross gable with fancy turned trim. Walls are covered with German siding and the cross gable is surfaced with scalloped shingles. Windows have single pane sash within architraves with pointed tops. The main entrance has a transom and trim matching that of the windows.

The 1877 Atlas map shows a building on this site belonging to Mrs. Welsh.
