Description:

This two story, three bay American Foursquare style house is a frame structure covered with asbestos shingle siding. Windows have six over one light sash. The entrance is in the central bay of the front elevation. There is a hipped roof porch across the front supported by square posts. The house has the characteristic hipped roof and a hip roofed dormer.

It is one of several foursquares representing the 1910-1920 period of construction in Funkstown.
