Description of Property and Justification: (Please attach map and photo)

14225 Basore Road does not appear eligible for listing in the NRHP under Criteria A, B,C, or D. The resource does not appear significant for its method of construction or architecture. The Cape Cod style is a common mid-twentieth century building style found throughout Maryland and 14225 Basore Road is a fairly typical example. In addition, 14225 Basore Road has been altered from its original appearance, compromising its architectural integrity. Alterations include the replacement of window sash, application of aluminum siding, and the construction of modern additions off the rear facade. As a result of these changes the property's integrity of design, materials, workmanship, and feeling has been compromised. Archival research conducted at local and county libraries and historical societies, and investigations of cultural resource studies at MHT have produced no information indicating the resource to be significant for its association with significant events or persons, or for its ability to yield information important in historic or prehistory.

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

14225 Basore Road is a brick, one-and-one-half story, two-bay, Cape Cod-style dwelling. The resource faces west and has a side-gabled roof, covered with asphalt shingles. Aluminum siding is located under the gables. Window openings are rectangular and contain one-over-one, six-over-six, and four-over-four replacement sash. A single-story brick section is attached to the south façade that is probably original to the dwelling. A single-story addition and two-story addition are attached to the rear façade. An exterior brick flue is located on the north façade. The building does not appear to be used as a residential dwelling and may be related to activities at the adjacent Hagerstown Airport.

Evaluation for:

National Register Maryland Register not evaluated

Prepare a one-paragraph summary statement of significance addressing applicable criteria, followed by a narrative discussion of the history of the resource and its context. (For compliance projects, complete evaluation on a DOE Form – see manual.)

14225 Basore Road appears to have been built in the mid-twentieth century, based upon its building type and stylistic characteristics. The Hagerstown Airport underwent an expansion during the Second World War, and 14225 Basore Road may have been built as part of the airport expansion.

14225 Basore Road does not appear eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places under Criteria A, B, C, or D (as specified in 36 CFR 60.4). The resource does not appear significant for its method of construction or architecture (Criterion C). The Cape Cod-style is a common mid-twentieth century building style found throughout Maryland, and 14225 Basore Road is a fairly typical example. In addition, 14225 Basore Road has been altered from its original appearance, compromising its architectural integrity. Alterations include the replacement of window sash, application of aluminum siding, and the construction of modern additions off the rear facade. As a result of these changes, the property's integrity of design, materials, and workmanship has been compromised. Archival research conducted at local and county libraries and historical societies, and investigations of cultural resource studies at MHT have produced no information indicating the resource to be significant for its associations with significant events or persons, or for its ability to yield information important in prehistory or history (Criteria A, B, and D).
