This complex consists of an L-shaped two story frame house and a board and batten frame stable with shed extensions. There are also additional domestic sheds and outbuildings. The house is situated on the east side of Maugansville Road, with the leg of the L projecting to the front or west. The house is covered with vinyl siding, with one over one and four over four windows. The main entrance is located in the corner of the L, set on the diagonal. The character-defining feature of the house is the two bay front porch supported by turned posts, with a panel of turned spindles in the frieze area. Other features include landscape elements such as hedge, large cedar trees and cast stone steps and curbing, which appear to date at least to the early 20th century. The frame board and batten covered stable remains intact, with various shed extensions. The date attribution is based on balloon frame construction and the overall form of the buildings.

Located on the south edge of the village of Maugansville, this rural village complex reflects the turn of the century character of Maugansville. The community experienced substantial growth during the early 20th century due to several agricultural-related industries, such as grain processing and hatcheries, as well as the community becoming a retirement center for local farmers.
