Approximate date Ca. 1910

Located on the northwest corner of Garden View Road and Maugansville Road, is this early 20th century frame house covered with vinyl siding. Its most prominent feature is its wraparound porch, now supported by vinyl or aluminum clad columns with aluminum railing. The house is four bays wide with two central front doors. There are only two bays at the second floor level, above the first story windows. Windows have single pane replacement sash and some have been modified in size. A two story flat roofed extension with a two story porch is attached to the south gable end of the house. A poured concrete retaining wall defines the yard area. The date attribution is based on the balloon frame construction and the overall form of the building.

This house, dating from the early 20th century reflects Maugansville's major growth period during which time the village took on its present appearance. Several agricultural-related industries were established by this time such as grain processing and hatcheries and the village became a retirement community for local farmers. Most of the residents were Mennonites or other German sectarians who adopted conservative house types, often two stories with four bays and two front doors, as seen in this example.
