Description

This frame building is a two story, five bay Italianate style structure with a nearly flat roof dominated by a bracketed overhang. It is covered with narrow gauge wood siding. There is a central second story projecting bay over the entrance and what appears to be a later semi-hexagonal projecting bay at the south end of the front elevation. Windows have single pane sash within flat-topped architraves. A porch with doric columns extends across the front.

Although now a residence, the proximity of this building to the railroad and the center of town suggests that it may have had another use at one time. A building is shown on this site on the 1877 Atlas map.
