DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This stone farmhouse is a two and a half story, five bay building with a one and a half stone wing built over a spring. It appears to be part of the original construction. The main house faces south with the back extension placed at right angles to it.

Attached to the west end wall is a late 19th century two story brick addition.

The main house is constructed of coursed local limestone with flat arches of angle cut chiseled stones above the openings. Windows are placed at regular intervals in the front and east end walls and have massive framing with ovolo trim. Original sashes have been replaced with two over two pane sashes.

The main entrance is located in the center bay of the front elevation. A four panel Victorian door has replaced the original. A small one bay entrance porch is present which also seems to be a replacement.

Large stone chimneys with corbels at their tops are located inside the end walls.

An opening into the cellar in the east end wall has a two part "Dutch" door on long hinges. Inside, the cellar ceiling was insulated with massive puncheon logs or planks upon which rested stones and mortar.

Northwest of the house is a large stone bank barn and related sheds and outbuildings. In front of the house is a deteriorated log outbuilding.

Numerous limestone fences border the farm lanes and fields on the property.

The house is said to have been built between 1802 and 1804. Architectural evidence observed would tend to support that date.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This farm complex is significant as an excellent example of Ca. 1800 stone construction indigenous to the Cumberland Valley. The group is a complete farmstead and represents an important architectural genre.

This farm is adjacent to the Civil War Battlefield of Antietam and heavy fighting took place not far to the south. Most recent research indicates that the portion of the house re the spring is was the room used by Clara Barton, Nurse, who came to Antietam just after the Battle.

During the late 18th century, this property was owned by John Miller whose will was probated December 17, 1794. His lands were left to his many children equally and it is not known from information available at present exactly who resided upon this portion of the real estate. In 1821, John Miller's heirs sold this part of the property to Abraham Miller, perhaps because he had been living on the land and had built the improvements. (Will Book A/318, FF/446). In 1854 the property was acquired by Jacob Poffenberger who sold it the following year to Henry Poffenberger. Briefly between 1862 and 1868 it was owned by Samuel Doub who sold it to Samuel Poffenberger. It has remained in the Poffenberger family since. The farm includes parts of the land grants, "Resurvey on Ellwicks Dwelling," "Smith's Purchase," and "Joe's Farm."
