DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

#7 Located off Greenbrier Road in Greenbrier State Park is a small, one story, three bay log cabin which was inaccessible at the time the park was visited in January, 1979.

The structure is situated in an area of thick underbrush and is built of presumably hewn logs that are unsided. Windows and door openings appear to have plain trim. No door or sashes could be seen. The roof is sheathed with corrugated sheet metal.

The building is in deteriorated condition.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

#8 This small log house is typical of many such structures in the Mt. Lena - Greenbrier area. Most of these dwellings date from the mid 19th century or later and many remain in use as private residences. The majority of these structures are covered with various forms of siding. They are important for their architecture as examples of a significant form of housing prominent in the Appalachian Region. These log dwellings also have significance in the area's social history especially in the vicinity of Mt. Lena and Greenbrier and other settlements along South Mountain where almost the whole community is made up of houses similar to this one.

ADDENDA

In 1984 the Department of Natural Resources contracted with Joe Getty to conduct a follow-up survey of selected historic properties on DNR lands. DNR funded the field survey and photography but did not prepare finished copy. The attached photocopy pages were forwarded to the Maryland Historical Trust to supplement existing files. All original material and photographs remain in the possession of the Department of Natural Resources under the supervision of Ross Kimmel (x3771).

Subject: Log House Near Spiker Log House, Greenbrier State Park

The map location for this structure appears to be inaccurate.

The location shown on the 1979 survey form (south side of Greenbrier Road) has the remains of a stone foundation. However judging by the size of the trees growing inside this ruin, this house has been gone more than five years.

The slide that you provided for the identification of this site is of a log house located on the north side of Greenbrier Road where this road dead-ends. According to an adjoining property owner, this structure is not on state-owned property. Instead, it is on a five-eighths acre parcel of land owned by William Souders.
