BUILDING DATE: early 19th century?

109 East Chapline Street is a south-facing, horizontally massed, symmetrical, two-and-a-half-story, four-bay, stone, freestanding, residential structure. It is set directly at the public-right-of-way. The stone is rock-faced and laid in relatively even courses. The side-gable, standing-seam metal roof has open eaves and gable returns. The first-floor front facade is composed of two entrances, one in each of the end bays, with two windows in between. The framing for a shed-roof porch is in place, however, the roof is not covered. The entrances are identical--each has a four-panel door with a three-light transom above. Fenestration consists of wood-frame, double-hung, two-over-two windows. The windows have stone jack arches. The side yard is defined by a stone retaining wall and is entered through a frame pergola-type feature. There are several sheds in the yard. The property has not been subdivided since the town was platted.

Based on its stone construction, this building appears to date from the first half of the 19th century. However, it should be noted that the building does not have the commemorative 1862 plaque indicating that it was standing in 1862. A building of the same configuration is noted on the 1877 map of the town as being owned by James Stouby. The 1922 Sanborn notes this structure as 305 East Chapline.

The building is within the Western Maryland Geographic Organization, the Development Period of Agricultural-Industrial Transition, and falls within the Historic Period Themes of
