200 East Antietam Street is a north-facing, symmetrical, two-and-a-half-story, frame, two-bay, freestanding, residential structure resting on a concrete block foundation. Set directly at the public-right-of-way on a corner lot, it has been covered with manufactured siding. It has a side-gable, standing-seam metal roof with open and overhanging eaves. The first-floor front facade is composed of an entrance in a west bay and a double-hung, one-over-one window in the east bay. The first floor of the front facade is shielded by an open, hipped-roof porch supported by modern iron railing. The second floor has two bays, each holding a double-hung, one-over-one window. There are two one-story, gable-roof side additions.

A commemorative plaque indicates that this building was standing in 1862. The brick, corner portion of the building is noted on the 1877 map of the town as being owned by J.C. Grove. The structure is noted on the 1922 Sanborn with its two side additions as 405 East Antietam.

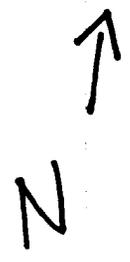

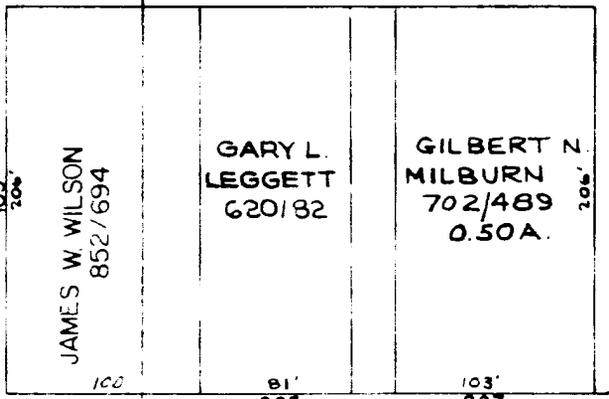

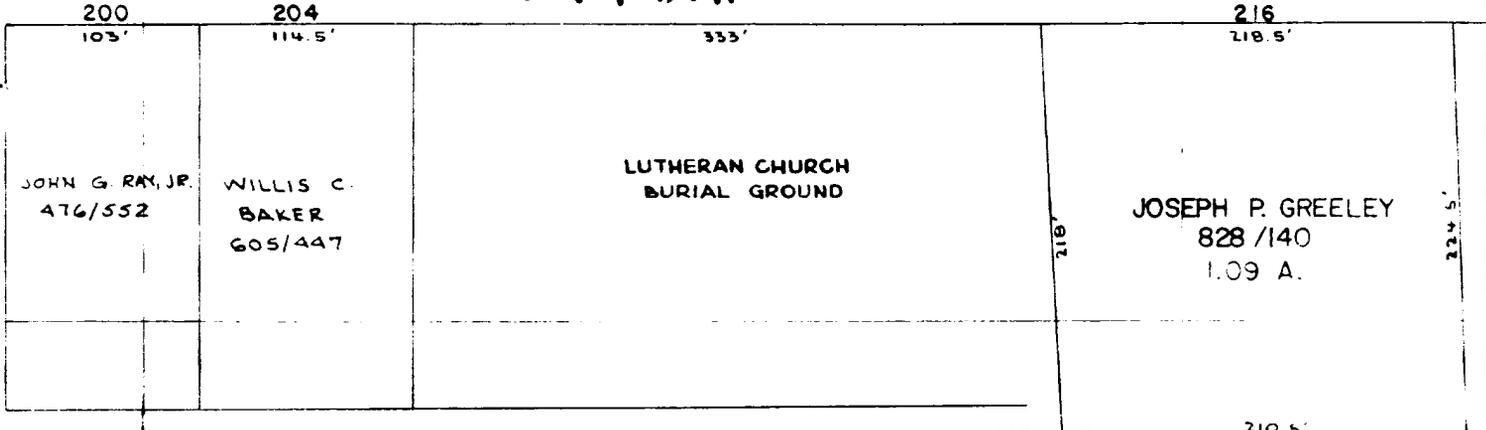

The building is within the Western Maryland Geographic Organization, the Development Period of Agricultural-Industrial Transition, and falls within the Historic Period Theme of Architecture, Landscape Architecture, and Community Planning.
