BUILDING DATE: mid-19th century (pre-1862)

125 East Main Street is a south-facing, symmetrical, two-and-a-half-story, stone (random, rough-cut), five-bay, freestanding, residential structure resting on a stone foundation. It is set directly at the public-right-of-way. It has a side-gable, artificial roll roof with two large, interior, endwall, stone chimneys. The first-floor front facade is composed of a paneled, recessed entrance in the center bay; double-hung, two-over-two windows; and a shed-roof, open porch set on thin posts. Windows in the second floor are nine-over-six sash. There is a two-story wing to the rear, the first floor of which is stone and the second floor of which is brick. A two-story open porch runs the length of the wing.

According to a 1962 walking tour brochure written by Clifton Smith, this structure was standing in 1862 and owned by the Rohrback family who had fled the town during the Battle of Antietam. The structure is noted on the 1877 map of the town as being owned by the Rohrback family. The building with its wing and two-story porch is noted on the 1922 Sanborn as 313 East Main.

The building is within the Western Maryland Geographic Organization, the Development Period of Agricultural-Industrial Transition, and falls within the Historic Period Theme of Architecture, Landscape Architecture, and Community Planning.
