Sarah E. Travers House
Nanticoke
Private

c. 1890-1900

Dating to the last decade of the nineteenth century, the Sarah E. Travers house stands within a few hundred feet of the Nanticoke River shoreline at a site historically known as Quarter Landing. In contrast with many of the turn of the century dwellings that stand in Nanticoke, this house was built in the form of a T, with the leg of the tee serving as the main facade. The south wall of the front section is a three-sided bay pavilion covered by a gable roof. Encircling the front portion of the house is a Tuscan columned porch that repeats the three-sided principal elevation. Cross gables and corbeled cap chimneys add further definition and interest to the steeply pitched gable roof of the main block.

Chain of title research for this property traces ownership back to the early twentieth century occupancy of Sarah E. Travers, who raised her family in this house. Her last will and testament, written in 1923 and probated fifteen years later, bequeathed “all of my oyster grounds wherever the same may be located together with all the oysters planted or growing thereon” to her two children, Adah Travers Walter and R. Edward Travers, in equal shares. To her physically challenged daughter Rose she left the bulk of her estate. In 1944 the river-front property was sold to Herman S. and Edith S. Turner for the benefit of Rose Travers. Two years later, the Turners conveyed their title to Newell W. Messick of Baltimore City, who retained ownership until 1970. Messick family tenure on the property continued until 1983.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Sarah E. Travers house is located at 20456 Quarter Landing Road in the river village of Nanticoke, Wicomico County, Maryland. The two-and-a-half story frame house faces south with the gable roof oriented on a north/south axis.

Dating around 1890-1900, the two-and-a-half story, tee-shaped frame house is supported on an infilled brick pier foundation, and the exterior is fully covered with vinyl siding. The steeply pitched gable roof is covered with asphalt shingles. The house is joined on the lot by a garage and in-ground pool.

The front of the house is formed by the projecting leg of the tee plan with a wraparound Tuscan columned porch extending the structure on each side. A rectangular baluster handrail stretches between the Tuscan columns. The south face of the tee is a three-sided bay with a gable roof cover extending beyond the corners of the bayed front. Single-pane sash windows light the first and second floors, and a multi-pane window pierces the gable end. The east and west side of the front leg are marked by single-pane sash windows on the first floor and two-over-two sash windows on the second floor. Centered on the roof of each elevation is a cross gable pierced by a multi-pane attic window. Fixed in the northern most bay of each side is an entrance filled with an oval window door. A single flue brick stove chimney rises through the roof, and it is finished with a corbeled cap. The eaves to the roof are extended and the soffits are enclosed.

The rear section of the house forms the cross of the tee plan. A combination of single-pane and two-over-two sash windows light the first and second floors to each side of interior end brick stove chimneys.

The interior was not seen.
