I.O.O.F. Building
Salisbury
Private

1920-21

One of the prominent commercial blocks which stands along East Main Street, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows building was designed in a neoclassical format similar to the old Wicomico Hotel and the former office block of the Salisbury Building, Loan, & Banking Association. The vertical four-story East Main Street elevation is divided horizontally into three segments that correspond to the base, shaft, and capital of a neoclassical column. The first floor, representing the base, follows a rusticated format with an overall pattern of projecting blocks surrounding a pair of entrances and a large display window. Fixed in the northwest corner of the front wall is a large marble cornerstone incised with the 1921 construction date and the name of the I.O.O.F chapter, the Newton Lodge No. 56, along with the three interlocking rings used by the Old Fellows in their iconography. The second and third floors, representing the column shaft, are defined by tall pilasters that rise from the rusticated base and meet a stone entablature at the fourth floor level. Boldly sized I.O.O.F letters are cut into the frieze, which is topped by a block cornice that caps the building and represents the column capital.

Initial preparation for the construction of the I.O.O.F. building began with a contract issued to Captain Otis S. Lloyd, who drove piles into the soft, muddy pond bottom on which Main Street was extended eastward. The $40,000 contract to erect the brick Odd Fellows lodge went to the Eastern Shore Construction Company with the brickwork subcontracted to William C. Powell. On March 31, 1921 an impressive ceremony was held to lay the cornerstone. I.O.O.F. officials from all over the state attended the ceremonial start of construction, which included a parade and a concert by the Odd Fellows' band at the Salisbury armory. Over the years the building has been used for a variety of purposes. During the mid twentieth century, the New Theatre was housed on the first floor. More recently the building has been divided for professional offices.

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows building, now known as the East Main Street Professional building, stands at 132-134 East Main Street in the center of Salisbury's business district. The large rectangular shaped commercial block is four stories tall and three bays across. The brick building faces north.

Built in 1920-21, the I.O.O.F building has an elaborately executed East Main Street façade in Flemish bond, whereas the other three walls are laid in seven-course common bond. The walls rise to brick parapets that disguise a low sloping shed roof.

The north (main) elevation is a symmetrically designed façade with the brickwork executed in three distinct levels which correspond to the parts of a column. The first floor is defined in a rusticated manner of brickwork and at the same time incorporates a pair of side entrances framed by wide stone surrounds. Centered in the wall is a large display case window. Fixed in the northeastern corner of the first floor brickwork is a large cornerstone which carries the dates 1847 and 1921 as well as three interlocked rings and the name Newton Lodge No. 56, I. O. O. F. Stretching across the wall above the first floor openings is a stone beltcourse and rising atop it are tall brick pilasters which extend two stories to a stone cornice. The wall surface is laid in Flemish bond and the outside corners are distinguished by brick quoins. The first and second floors are lighted by single-pane sash windows in most bays. A triple set of single-pane sash windows marks the center bay on the third floor. Fixed atop the pilasters is a stone entablature engraved with the initials, I.O.O.F. The entablature is distinguished by a block cornice. The Flemish bond brick wall continues nearly a full story above the cornice.

The east wall is defined by four stories of window openings. Marking the first floor are small six-over-six sash windows, and located above each window is a bricked up opening. The second, third, and fourth floors are lighted by series of single or paired single-pane sash windows. The top of the wall is defined by a corbelled brick cornice.

The south (rear) wall is pierced by four bays with a combination of single-pane sash windows and boarded over door openings. The window openings are spanned by steel lintels imbedded in the brickwork, and each opening has a brick sill. Rising within the southwest corner is an internal furnace flue with a stack that extends above the line of the parapet wall. A metal fire escape is attached to the rear wall surface.

The interior has been modified many times over the years as a variety of commercial ventures have operated from this structure. For a period during the mid twentieth century the first floor was used as a movie theater with a marquee out front.

CORNER STONE I.O.O.F. TEMPLE LAID TUESDAY

Impressive Ceremonies Attend the Event—Many Visiting Lodgemen Present.

The corner stone of the new Odd Fellows Temple of Newton Lodge No. 56, situated on East Main street, was laid at 3:30 P.M. Tuesday with impressive ceremonies.

Representatives of Odd Fellows lodges from all over the Eastern Shore attended the big event, as also did several grand officers of the lodge from Baltimore and Western Maryland. Grand Master H. Dorsey Etchison, of Federick, was in charge of the corner laying ceremonies, and was assisted by other grand officers of the order.

The day's program opened at 1:30 P.M. in the First Regiment Armory with a reception to the grand officers, W. B. Steven, Noble Grand, being master of the ceremonies. Preceding the cornerstone laying, a parade was held through the city streets of Salisbury in which all the members of the local lodge and the visiting lodge men marched. Music was furnished for the occasion by the I.O.O.F. Band, which also gave a concert at 4 P.M. in the Armory.

Supper was served in the basement of the Armory by Helping Hand Rebeckah Lodge No. 23, and at 6:30 P.M. conferring of the first degree took place in the Armory, the work being done by the degree staff of Newton Lodge.

Much enthusiasm was created during the public meeting that was held at 8 P.M. in the Armory, as the keynote of the meeting was the bringing to Salisbury of the new $100,000 Odd Fellows Home for the Orphans and Aged.

Mr. Fred P. Adkins, president of the Salisbury Chamber of Commerce, addressed the meeting and told the lodge men that a free site would be given them if the order would locate the new home here. Every effort will be made to establish the home in Salisbury and it is to be hoped that the efforts will be successful.

It will be noted that Calvert, Charles and St. Mary's counties are omitted, for the reason that there are no High Schools in those counties. Superintendent Bennett supplements these figures with the information that 13 per cent. of all the pupils enrolled in the public schools of Wicomico are attending High Schools. The Superintendent is very proud of the splendid showing made by the schools under his supervision, and the Board of Education is equally as proud.

A new departure in school work, and one which promises great results to the health of the school children, has been launched in Baltimore county by the operation of a travelling Dental clinic in charge of Dr. George P. Dennis. This unit will journey into the remote parts of the county for the treatment of the teeth of the school children.

The startling discovery that approximately 75% of all the children in the schools of Baltimore County were found to be suffering from defective teeth moved the authorities to conceive the mobile dental unit. The examinations made last year revealed the fact that the children residing in the more remote districts showed higher percentages of defective teeth than those living nearer to the city.

The main purpose of the unit will be the correction of dental defects existing among the school children. Appropriate literature will be distributed to the children, telling how the teeth should be cared for, their importance in relation to general health, and general oral hygiene to prevent the teeth from becoming infected. In other words, efforts will be directed both toward the prevention as well as the correction of dental defects.

A Ford Sedan, equipped with a complete set of dental apparatus and appropriately lettered, will be used in carrying on this important work.

MR. LLOYD RECOVERING.

Reports from the Peninsula General Hospital are to the effect that Mr. O. Straughn Lloyd's condition is favorable and his recovery is looked for. Mr. Lloyd submitted to an operation for gall-stones by Dr. Dick early last week. The many friends of Mr. Lloyd will be pleased to know that he has passed the crises and is on the road to recovery.

SALISBURY CONTRACTORS GETTING OUTSIDE WORK

Have Secured Large Contracts in Virginia and in Delaware— Busy Period Ahead.

Salisbury contractors report that while there are few large contracts for new construction in Salisbury and vicinity at the present time, they have been successful in securing contracts for considerable work in adjoining counties, which will keep them busy for several months. The following reports have been made to a News reporter:

Contractor Lee Johnson, new Baptist Church at Medestown, Va., to cost approximately $40,000. This church will be constructed of brick. New residence at Parksley, Va., for a Mr. Johnson, to be constructed of red pressed brick and to cost about $15,000.

Eastern Shore Construction Co., of Salisbury, contract for erecting the new Odd Fellows' building in Salisbury, to cost about $40,000. This building will be three stories and will be built of tapestry brick and terra cotta.

The contract for doing the brick work on this building has been sublet to Wm. C. Powell, of this city. Mr. Powell has recently secured the contract for doing the brick work on the new $40,000 colored high school in Laurel, Del. Mr. Powell has about completed the building of a large brick addition to the boiler room of the Laurel Lumber Company's plant.

Several of our contractors are bidding on the new $100,000 brick high school building at Lewes, Del., the contract for which will soon be awarded.

LOCAL FERTILIZER PLANTS BUSY MAKING SHIPMENTS

the vice of the drive for Company now has about 87 en- listen men. The number it should have is 100.

An active campaign has been made to secure the additional men. Some have promised to join and others have promised to come to the Armory to make of Company "I" hospitality to get a clearer understanding of the life of a member of the National Guard.

On Tuesday afternoon a recruiting trip was made through Hebron, Mar- dela and Sharptown in all of which points the party was well received. The meaning of membership in Com- pany "I" was explained and an in- vitation extended to the young men of these towns to come to the Ar- mory on Thursday night.

Just what has been planned for Thursday night has not been fully explained. The Rotary Club has been invited and has accepted, to visit Company "I" on Thursday night and to become acquainted with their "Lit- tle Brothers."

Dinner will be served at the Ar- mory by the Rotary Club and as en- tertainment the company will drill. There will also be competitive drills with prizes for the best drilled ex- service man, and for the best drilled new member of the Company.

Additional features have not been announced but it is assured that Thursday evening at the Armory will be thoroughly enjoyed.

Mr. Nock states that he is ready and eager at all times to meet any one or as many as desire to accept his challenge, and he further adds that he prefers such joint debate to be held with the public in attendance, so that all may have the privilege of hearing it.

His second open letter to the grow- ers, calls attention to the fact that certain insidious propoganda is being spread about, and he urges them to either attend the nightly meetings being held throughout the county or to call at his office and learn all about the immense good that will accrue to them through the medium of the as- sociation. His letter follows:

To the Growers of Wicomico county: The foregoing, of course, includes both farmers and farm owners. The Wicomico Farmers' Association is doing about as day by day. Wicomico county farmers and farm land owners are daily becoming convinced that organization is their only salvation.

Mr. Nock and other speakers every night at the scheduled meetings are answering all questions, and absolute- ly proving false certain untrue and misleading propoganda put in circula- tion by certain ones. The offices— Rooms 5 and 6 Masonic Temple—are open every day up to six o'clock in the afternoon and Mr. Nock is ever ready to answer any and all questions to your entire satisfaction—this is no idle boast—it is the facts in the case.

U. S. Supreme Court To Settle Question

Will Decide Whether Prohibition Enforcement Is To Be Transferred To Department of Justice.

Whether prohibition enforcement is to be transferred from the Internal Revenue Department to the Department of Justice will depend upon whether the Volstead act has nullified old revenue laws. Mr. George W. Crabbe, superintendent of the Maryland Anti-Saloon League, said recently. Litigation to settle this point is pending in the United States Supreme Court.

If the old laws are held to have been abrogated by the Volstead act, the penalties and taxes which they carried with them also will become void, and the interest of the Internal Revenue Department in prohibition enforcement will cease.

ROBBERS ACTIVE IN POCOMOKE.

The store of C. W. Bunting Co., on Clarke avenue, and that of Noah Gunby, at the corner of Fourth street and Linden avenue, Pocomoke City, were entered by thieves and relieved of a small amount of goods in each case. Entrances in each case occurred at night and were made by force. Both of these establishments are engaged in the bicycle supply business and carry a large line of revolvers, cartridges, etc. It was the last named articles that the thieves seemed eager for as in both cases revolvers and cartridges were taken in large numbers. It is estimated that the loss in each case amounted somewhere around $100.

RESIGNS TO PRACTICE LAW.

Mr. William H. Lamar, former solicitor for the United States Post Office Department, has resigned in order to engage in the practice of law in Washington, D. C. He will have associated with him Mr. Lucius Q. C. Lamar, who at present is connected with the Baltimore law firm of Marbury, Gosnell and Williams.

DREDGING SEASON CLOSES.

The season for dredging for oysters in Maryland waters closed March 15. During the early part of the season the prices were good and there was a reasonable demand for the bivalves, but a few weeks ago the market broke and a number of the packing houses were closed before the scheduled time. Tongers season does not expire until April 25.

March 31, 1921
Gannon, who is 200 years old and who lives only about 200 yds. from the White residence, is a tinsmith by trade, while Mr. White was familiarly known as "Capt" White by many of those for whom he shucked oysters around the Camden bridge, where he plied his trade for many years. The deceased is survived by his widow and several children.

ing the public meeting that was held at 8 P. M. in the Armory, as the keynote of the meeting was the bringing to Salisbury of the new $100,000 Odd Fellows Home for the Orphans and Aged.

Mr. Fred P. Adkins, president of the Salisbury Chamber of Commerce, addressed the meeting and told the lodge men that a free site would be given them if the order would locate the new home here. Every effort will be made to establish the home in Salisbury and it is to be hoped that the efforts will be successful.

Following is a list of the Grand officers attending the cornerstone laying event:

Grand Master, H. Dorsey Etchison, Frederick, Md.

Challenges Opponents To Debate

not put the association on the absolutely solid basis it deserves at once by taking immediately whatever amount of stock you intend taking, and thereby let us be at work on other important and necessary matters.

Next to what the chorus offers us, this matter is next in importance to you, and just to prove it, I will be pleased to meet any one as many as may wish to accept the challenge to join in debate in private or in public—and much prefer it all times to be in public—to prove my contention that the Wicomico Farmers As-

IN BLOUSES, as in suits, it appears that designers are in a gracious mood and have been generous in giving us a variety of styles, developed in the usual sheer materials or crepe de chine, or wash silks and satins. To these tulle, either plain or changeable, have been added, providing the most promising innovation in the blouse styles, with the charm of novelty to favor it. But nothing will rival the beautiful and dainty georgette in the affections of women, except those sheer cotton fabrics that resemble it.

The story of spring blouses therefore opens with those made of georgette followed by lingerie blouses of voile, batiste, lawn or similar cottons and closes with a chapter on various other materials and styles. This is a brief summing up of a long story, for there is so much variety in the development of blouses that everyday presents something new in details for consideration. Lingerie blouses employ fine tucks, drawn work and other needlework for their decoration together with the lingerie laces, val, clay, Irish crochet and filet. The
